CROWD SEES BIG BOAT RACE

Harvard Favorite Over Yale in This Afternoon's Contest on the Thames.

HARVARD WON FIRST TWO

NEW LONDON, June 20.—Having won the first four races of the regatta, Harvard entered the principal race this afternoon—the "big" event, the contest between the varsity eights—with unusual confidence of winning, and thereby "sweeping Yale off the river." The Harvard eight was favorite for the race, which was staged before a tremendous gathering this afternoon.

This contest was virtually to dispose of a tie. Harvard and Yale have raced on the Thames since 1852. Each university had won twenty-three of the "big" races, so called.

Difference in Rowing Style.

The race this afternoon was, moreover, a clean-cut contest between the American and the English styles of rowing—Harvard, under the direction of James Wray, sticking to the modified American style, and Yale, under Head Coach W. Averill Harriman, Coach Gold, who came over from England for the purpose, and other instructors, following the English method.

Harvard began the day by winning the race between the varsity fours by six lengths and the contest between the freshmen eights by a length and a quarter. Last evening Harvard won the other two preliminaries—the contest of the second varsity fours and the race between the freshmen fours. Harvard also had a "gentlemen's eight," composed of graduates, on the river, according to custom, and they challenged Yale, in the old-time form. But Yale dodged the issue, claiming a crew, but pleading lack of a shell. Harvard won this race by default.

Frequent rain flurries this morning gave the famous crowd which followed the first two races a rather disagreeable experience. But when the races came off the river was smooth and there was no rain.

A complete account of the freshmen eights and varsity fours races will be found on Page 13.

Six Autoists Are Fined in Malden

Six motorists were fined by Judge Bruce in the Malden court today a total of $55. Theodore Lavin of 124 Devon street, Dorchester, was fined $5, John Hurley of Auburn street, Roxbury, Herbert W. Colby of 34 Hyde street, Newton Highlands and Harry W. Atkinson, Jr., of 24 Apley court, Cambridge, were fined $10 each for speeding; Sydney W. Williams of Pond road, Wellesley, was fined $10 for driving on a road excluded to automobiles, and Charles F. Doherty of Wakefield paid $10 for running car without lights.

Resume Inquest in Stamford Tragedy

STAMFORD, Ct., June 20.—Coroner J. J. Phelan this afternoon resumed his inquest concerning the New Haven wreck, in which six lives were lost, after having deferred to the joint investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission and Public Utilities Commission, which adjourned yesterday afternoon at Bridgeport.

Candy Girl of 16 Asks Heart Balm

Dora Goodman on Stand Tells of Intimacy with Miller.

Nineteen-year-old Dora Goodman, a former candy girl in a Boston chocolate factory, who is suing Samuel Miller, of No. 822 Tremont street, for $5,000 for alleged breach of promise, on the stand today in the Suffolk Superior Court declared that she had given up her job at Miller's urgent request. She said:

He told me it was too hard work for the girl who was to be his wife. I will support you, he said:

The first week he gave me $5. After the first week he never gave me any more money. After three weeks he cooled off and told me he didn't want to see me again until he sent for me. He never sent for me to this day.

Miller was in the court room. To a reporter he stated that he was "married to another girl" last March.

Miss Goodman told of meeting Miller through Rabbi Spritz of Chelsea. She said she and Miller had signed a marriage agreement drawn up by the rabbi. "My parents gave me $250 for my dowry, and I spent $150 in wedding preparations," she said.

Legislature Ends Session Tonight

The Legislature of 1913 will end its work tonight. The session ends with the Governor and the legislators at war.

It was declared that the Governor would send with his message prorguing the Legislature a special farewell message telling the legislators his frank opinion of them and their work. The session will ends as usual with a mock session.

Four records were established during the session, three by the Legislature and one by the Governor. The latter sent thirty-two vetoes to the Legislature. The Legislature passed ten measures over the Governor's head, also a record. Approximately 2,000 measures were considered and 830 bills and 133 resolves were enacted, also records.

Draper's Nimbus Is London Winner

LONDON, June 20.—At the International Horse Show at Olympia the attendance was slightly better today. Judge W. H. Moore of New York had to contest himself with second prize in class 15 for novice tandems not exceeding fifteen hands, in which he was represented by Best and Raeburn. J. Sumner Draper of Boston obtained second prize with Nimbus in class 10 for novice single harness horses over fifteen hands and not exceeding fifteen and one-half hands.

Boat to Enforce Muffling Law

The Motor Boat Muffling Association has chartered the motor boat Palm, which it purposes to turn over to the State police for use in the enforcement of the motorboat muffling law and the prevention of crime along the shores of Massachusetts. The Palm is sixty-five feet long, and is equipped with a ninety-horsepower engine.

Court Sets Aside Lorings' Marriage

Judge Crosby in the Suffolk Divorce Court today annulled the marriage of George Loring and Mary Richards Loring, after both had testified that the woman had not been legally divorced from Thomas McGowan. Both said they believed McGowan had been legally divorced. Loring said the woman were married in New York, April 11, 1907.

Pass $8,000,000 State Tax Bill

The bill fixing $8,000,000 as the State tax for this year was passed by both legislative branches today. This is the highest State tax in the history of the Commonwealth.

CONVICT REVERE ASSESSOR

Jury Reaches Verdict On One Ballot—Maximum Penalty Ten Years.

BAIL RAISED TO $6,000

Samuel A. Segee, chairman of the Revere Board of Assessors, was found guilty in five counts of forgery of public records of the town of Revere, the sealed verdict of the jury being opened today before Judge Brown in the Suffolk Superior Court. Segee's bail was at once raised from $2,000 to $6,000. Ten years' sentence in the Charlestown State Prison is the maximum penalty in Massachusetts for forgery.

Segee heard the verdict read without the slightest show of emotion. He was later taken to the detention room at the courthouse, while his friends made efforts to raise bonds to secure his release. It was understood the jury took but one ballot.

Segee's counsel during the trial, which lasted six full court days, noted 200 exceptions. The attorneys for the head of the Revere assessors have three days in which to file motion for argument on the exceptions. It is also expected a motion for stay of sentence will be filed.

Segee was indicted by the Grand Jury on May 19. He was arrested the same day on Broadway, in Revere, on the charge of forging the Revere valuation lists and was later arraigned before Judge Crosby. His arrest followed charges made by Tax Collector Arthur C. Pendergast of Revere that the Revere town books had been falsified and that a discrepancy of $900 was shown on the books.

It was Mrs. Gladys Hamilton, clerk in the office of Collector Pendergast, who first discovered the alleged discrepancies in the book and brought them to the attention of Pendergast. Mrs. Hamilton was a government witness during the trial of Assessor Segee.

Segee is 60 years old. For several years he has lived apart from his wife and has been a lodger at the home of Mrs. Ida McLeod of Revere. At the trial Collector Pendergast testified that Mrs. McLeod had been taxed $380.55 on real property, but that on the tax lists she had been taxed for only $80.53. Pendergast declared that the missing $300 had been found as being taxed to Ida McLenton and as a tax on personal property. He stated that there was no such person as Ida McLenton.

Wilson to Sign Pork Barrel Bill

WASHINGTON, June 20.—President Wilson today informed his Cabinet that he would sign the sundry civil appropriation bill carrying $116,000,000, and that he would issue a statement at the same time giving his reasons for doing so.

Pass Police Pay Bill Over Veto

Both the House of Representatives and the Senate today passed over Governor Foss' veto the bill which increases to $2,000 the salary of the members of the district police who have served more than five years. The vote in the House was 156 to 25, and that in the Senate, 30 to 5. The bill is now a law.

Fined for Police Attack.

John Sweeney was fined $25 today by Judge Merrill, because last Sunday he assaulted Officer James M. Brady, constable of Mt. Ida Park. Brady testified that Sweeney, who lives at No. 20 Roach street, came to the park drunk, and he ordered him out. Sweeney went but returned, and, Brady says, attacked him from behind.

9 HOURS IN ELEVEN NOW LAW

Street Railway Men Muster 26 Votes, Just Enough to Override Veto.

SENATE IN AN UPROAR

The street carmen's nine-in-eleven-hour bill was passed over the veto of Governor Foss by the Senate today, by a vote of twenty-six to eleven, amidst scenes of great excitement. President Greenwood was compelled to order the galleries cleared. The bill now becomes law.

Thousands of uniformed carmen had thronged the corridors of the State House, and the Senate gallery, waiting for the vote to be taken on their bill. The preliminary roll-call found them with three votes short of the number necessary to pass the measure over the Governor's veto. They waited with tense nerves for the next move, when Senator Clark of Brockton arose to his feet.

"I wish to be recorded on this question," he declared, not having voted either way when the roll was called. "I vote yes——" A wild cheer from the galleries greeted the announcement.

Senator Bellamy of Taunton followed, with a similar request, and voting "yes" with the volume of cheers swelling to a wild hurrah, left the street carmen only one vote short of the number necessary to pass their bills over the Governor's veto.

Senator McGonagle of Boston then sprang to his feet and in a voice quivering with emotion cast the final and deciding vote in favor of the bill, and pandemonium broke loose.

Galleries Are Cleared.

President Greenwood pounded his desk, but the sound of his gavel could not be heard ten feet away, and he finally ordered the gallery cleared, but not before the cheering had been taken up by the thousands of men in the corridors.

Cheering excitedly, the street carmen marched through the State House corridors, past the Governor's chamber. A few of them hissed and groaned when passing the Governor's office.

The vote was as follows:

Yes—Allen, Bagley, Baxley, Bellamy, Brennan, Chase, Clark, Draper, Fay, Fisher, Fitzgerald, Gard, Halley, Hickey, Hilton, Horgan, Johnson, Joyce, Mack, McCarthy, McGonagle, McLane, Norwood, Quigley, Tinsley, Wheeler—26.

No—Blanchard, Coolidge, Eldridge, Gordon, Hersey, Hobbs, Montague, Stearns, Ward, Wells, Williams—11.

Not recorded—Ross, Greenwood (president).

During the debate on the veto Senator Blanchard said that former Secretary of State Olney, ex-Governor Bates and former Attorneys-General Parker, Pillsbury and Storey all agreed that the bill is unconstitutional.

Afflicted with Same Trouble.

As Senator Blanchard sat down Senator Horgan of Dorchester mid applause from the uniformed carmen in the gallery declared that the bill should be passed. He said:

"Governor Foss, Richard Olney and the others are afflicted with the same trouble that afflicted Alexander Hamilton. They cannot realize—the whole crowd of them—that power is not wholly vested in the financial interests of this country. Hamilton couldn't understand it and although a century has passed these men of the present day don't understand it.

"The whole trouble with these gentlemen is that they sit in the offices and draw a distinct line between capital and labor. Capital to their minds is everything. Some day they'll wake up."

"JACK" MORIARTY, witness of shooting of Ralph Shea, who says Policeman Miller was not justified in his tragic act.

"Miller, in my opinion, cannot claim that he shot in self-defence," says Miller, young athlete, prominent in South End.

WARRANT FOR AUTO DRIVER IN DEATH CAR

A warrant for the arrest of Paul B. Moulton of Brookline, driver of one of the automobiles in the so-called "death race" in Cohasset on May 11 in which Mrs. Beulah B. Smith of Lexington was killed, was secured today by Chief of Police Thomas L. Bates of Cohasset. The warrant charges manslaughter. Moulton is still in the Des Brisay Hospital in the Back Bay in a serious condition as a result of injuries he received in the accident.

It was stated this afternoon the warrant would be served on Moulton at the hospital, possibly before night. Moulton's counsel not expected to request a postponement of court action in the case until the motorist is able to leave the hospital.

It became known today that at the time of the accident which cost the life of Mrs. Smith, who was in Moulton's car, Moulton did not have a license to operate an automobile, according to information given out at the office of the State Highway Commission.

Moulton when he is able to leave the hospital will be arraigned in the Quincy District Court. His attorney is Henry F. Hurlburt, Jr., of Boston. An inquest into the death of Mrs. Smith is being held by Judge Albert E. Avery of Quincy.

The police claim that Moulton's machine was one of three racing along the road between Cohasset and Hingham. Near Whitney's Crossing in Cohasset, while turning an "S" curve, Moulton's car skidded, crashed into a fence and turned turtle. Mrs. Smith was instantly killed.

Appoints 2 Women Probation Officers

Chief Justice Bolster Makes Selections for Important Work.

Three more probation officers, two of them women, were appointed by Chief Justice Bolster today. The office carries a salary of $2,000 a year. Those appointed were Theresa Dowling of No. 318 Warren street, Roxbury, now clerk in the probation office; Margaret H. Marnan of No. 152 West Concord street, South End, a nurse; Eugene J. Callanan of No. 50 Bellevue street, Dorchester, chief clerk in the probation office.

Annie M. Kennedy of East Dedham has been appointed a clerk to take the office made vacant by Miss Dowling's promotion.

MOTHER OF BOY ASKS JUSTICE

Demands "All the Truth" in Court Hearing on Shea Tragedy.

NEW STORY OF TROUBLE

Patrolman Charles W. Miller of the Lagrange street police station, was arrested today for shooting and killing twenty-year-old Ralph P. Shea on Warrenton street on Bunker Hill Day.

A warrant for the arrest of Miller on a charge of manslaughter was issued from Boston Municipal Court.

This warrant follows a formal application by Captain Ainsley C. Armstrong of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, in accordance with police procedure in these cases.

Mrs. Nora Shea of No. 73 Carver street, mother of the slain boy, today demanded "the truth" in the tragedy of her son.

The grief-stricken mother, while holding herself well in control under the blow which has prostrated her household, still cannot refrain from urging that the blame for the tragedy be located.

The issuance of a warrant for Miller's arrest promises to grant Mrs. Shea's demand for the facts in the case.

But, before it was known whether or not a warrant would be granted by the lower court, John F. Shea, brother of the dead boy, had made up his mind to retain counsel and present evidence to be submitted to District Attorney Pelletier, no matter what other action was taken.

John F. Shea and other members of the family maintain that the police interviewed only witnesses whose testimony was favorable to Miller.

Among new accounts of the trouble between Miller and Shea, which ended in the fatal shooting, is that of Joseph Guppe, waiter at the Copley-Plaza Hotel and living at No. 108 Warrenton street. He says Miller fired two shots, the second one being discharged into the dark entry in which Shea and another had taken refuge.

This contradicts Miller's story that he fired one shot in the air at random.

See other details of the Shea case on Page 8.

INVESTIGATE DEATH FROM POLICE FIGHT

Medical Examiner Magrath performed an autopsy at the North Grove street morgue this afternoon on the body of Paul Quarrillo of Westboro, who died at the Massachusetts General Hospital after having been arrested in a fight in the town of Hopkinton and brought to the East Cambridge jail. It was claimed that Quarrillo had been kicked in the stomach by a policeman. This is denied by the Hopkinton police.

Constable Matthew Conlon and Special Officers McFall and Dolan made the arrest. Quarrillo grappled with Conlon.

"I tapped him on the head with my club just to frighten him," said Conlon today. "He kept fighting and finally got my club away from me. Then we grappled. I threw him, landing on his body. I then put the twisters on him and took him to the station. I did not kick him.

Quarrillo was fined $10 and sent to East Cambridge jail in default of payment. There he complained of pains in his abdomen. They increased and he was finally hurried to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he died last night following an abdominal operation.

Oppose Owen-Glass Currency Measure

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Opposition to the Owen-Glass currency measure was voiced by the minority members of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee today. The bill was termed an extension of the Vreeland measure and contains defects that must be eliminated before it is enacted into law. The Republican committeemen asserted that currency legislation could not be enacted at the present session without Republican support. Federal control of banking as provided in the new measure was criticised especially and the different rates of interest provided for the proposed banking regions were attacked.

Body of Lynn Boy of 5 Found in Pond

Five-year-old Francis Porter of No. 6 Otis street, Lynn, wandered away from his home today. His body was later found in Stuart Pond, Lynn. A pulmotor was used at the Lynn Hospital in a vain effort to revive the boy. The police said the youngster must have been drowned when playing in a boat on the pond.

WILD AUTO RIDE WINS FERRARI BOY FOR FATHER

Eight-year-old Giovanni De Ferrari, who was brought back from Pittsburgh by Probate Court Officer Fred J. Finnegan after desperate efforts on the part of the mother, the beautiful Justina M. De Ferrari, to retain possession of the lad, was today reunited to Finnegan's custody by Judge George of the Probate Court, with the understanding that the father, Joseph R. De Ferrari, a rich Back Bay man, shall care for the boy until the court makes permanent disposition.

After receiving charge of the boy Finnegan turned him over to the father. Mr. De Ferrari left Judge George's lobby overjoyed at getting his boy back once more.

It was said that the father plans to petition the court to have Mrs. De Ferrari adjudged in contempt for taking Giovanni out of the State.

Court Officer Finnegan related a thrilling tale of threats made against him in Pittsburg after he had secured the boy there, and of finally spiriting the lad away by fifty-mile automobile ride over the Allegheny Mountains to Greensburg, Pa., where he was able to get a northbound express without being detained he said.

After Mrs. De Ferrari's action for separate support was dismissed last November the court awarded the child to each parent six months alternately. Mrs. De Ferrari's turn was up last February. She took the boy to Pittsburgh.

Finnegan went there four times before recovering the child. His story today ran thus:

Officer Threatened.

"I am very, very glad to get back here with the little boy. I went to Pittsburgh on a writ of habeas corpus brought by Mr. De Ferrari. The case was heard before Judge Reed in Pittsburgh, and three times continued. I had to go and return each time. On my fourth trip the habeas corpus writ was in my name.

"In Pittsburgh Mrs. De Ferrari claimed on the witness stand that the six months' agreement over the child was forced from her by duress. This claim was proved false, Judge Reed gave the boy into my custody.

"Then I was threatened. I was told I would never be allowed to take the boy from the State. They even offered to give a $5,000 bond for the boy's safety if I would let him stay there a while. I refused. Then I was threatened again.

Crossed Mountains in Auto.

"This time I told Judge Reed of the threats. The Judge ordered two deputies to accompany me. He also took the little boy up in his arms at the bench and said in open court that he would give anyone a stiff sentence who interfered with me and the child.

"I waited a few hours. Then I had a high-powered touring car sent to the courthouse. I got in with the boy and the two deputies. Every railroad station in Pittsburgh was being watched. So I had the car driven fifty miles over the Allegheny mountains to Greensburg, where I got to be boy aboard a train for Philadelphia."

"The child was tired so we put up in Philadelphia over night, coming on to New York and Boston the next day. It was some trip but we got here all right."

Physical Value Board Begins Work

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The first meeting of the physical valuation board of the Interstate Commerce Commission, was held today. A number of representatives of various railroads in different sections of the country were in attendance. The matter of determining the value of railroads' assets, such as right of way franchises, rolling stock, etc., was not touched upon.

GREAT SNAKES! HIS HIGH COLLAR SAVES MARINER FROM REPTILE'S FANGS!

Jolly Tar and the Jimbaree.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Here's a real snake story and an advertisement for linen collars, all in one. The hero and the author of the great reptile yarn is Gerhard Wieder, third officer of the Prinz August Wilhelm, at our docks yesterday after a voyage from the West Indies, with 25,000 bunches of bananas in her hold—but that's another story.

While the Prinz August Wilhelm was lying in Pearl Lagoon, Nicaragua, inlet, taking cargo, Wieder had his adventure. He is an ardent collector of moths and butterflies and had gone into the jungle in quest of specimens. He had caught a particularly beautiful insect in his net and stooped to pick up his prize when he was struck a blow on the neck that sent him sprawling.

When he saw the cause he scrambled to his feet fast enough. A snake, known in these parts as the Jimbaree and deadly poisonous, had struck him.

Wieder affects exceedingly high collars. In fact, were it not for the ears they would engulf him completely. To this he attributes his life, for the fangs of the Jimbaree could not penetrate the stiffly starched linen.

"The collars are worn in the tropics," said Wieder, "but hereafter I shall wear them even if I am half cooked. As soon as I had recovered from my fright I seized a cudgel and started in pursuit of the snake, but he crawled off into the brush."

WOODBERRY FILES DEMAND IN LOVE SUIT

That he never promised to marry her, and that, if he did, he was justified in refusing to carry out his promise, is the answer of Henry J. Woodberry of No. 58 Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, in connection with a $25,000 suit alleging breach of promise to marry Miss Margaret Clarke of the Back Bay.

Woodberry denies every allegation made by Miss Clarke.

Miss Clarke, in her declaration, claimed that she and the defendant were introduced by mutual friends in 1906. Their acquaintance soon ripened into love and courtship. This continued, she claims, during seven years. She claimed that he often asked her to marry him, and that she acquiesced, going so far as to prepare her trousseau last Summer. She was assured that the wedding would take place in July, 1912. Every time she asked him to marry her he refused to do so.

Seek Girl Missing from Newton Home

The Newton police are looking for Mary Louise Lacroix, a girl employed by Mrs. John A. Dunne of No. 216 River street, West Newton.

Miss Lacroix was at the house Tuesday suddenly disappearing, and has not been seen or heard from. She is a girl of seventeen, of slight build, standing about four feet seven inches in height.

She has black hair and eyes, and a small nose and mouth. She wore a light brown coat and skirt, with a dark brown hat.

ELIZABETH SEWALL PRATT, grandniece of late Louisa May Alcott, wed to Alfred C. Redfield.

Louisa Alcott's Grand-Niece Wed

Harvard Man Breaks Record, Getting Sheepskin and Bride.

Speed records in getting a sheepskin and a bride almost simultaneously were broken by Alfred C. Redfield of Wayne, Pa., a cousin of Secretary of Commerce Redfield, who graduated from Harvard and a few hours later married at Concord, Miss Elizabeth Sewall Pratt, a grand-niece of the late Louisa May Alcott.

Miss Louisa Alcott Pratt, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, while one of the bridesmaids was Miss Ellen Hoar, daughter of the late Sherman Hoar and sister of ex-Senator Roger Sherman Hoar.

The bridegroom is to be an instructor at Harvard University next year.

Donatello Statue Bought for $80,000

FLORENCE, June 20.—After negotiations which have been going on for six years the government has purchased Donatello's statue of St. John from the Martelli family for $80,000. The statue is worth almost $1,000,000. The government acquired the statue through the right of pre-emption.

6864 PUPILS TO END SCHOOL YEAR TODAY

The seventy elementary schools of Boston conclude the public school year today with the graduation of 6864 boys and girls. The number of graduating pupils in the elementary schools is 124 larger than a year ago and 280 larger than in 1911.

There are 3556 girls as against 3308 boys in the graduating classes this year, a majority of 248 for the former. This is a marked change from last year when there was 3413 boys and only 3327 girls. But while there are 229 more girls graduating than a year ago, there are 105 fewer boys.

The largest single class is in the Oliver Wendell Holmes School, Dorchester, with 124 boys and 142 girls, and the Wendell Phillips School, West End, will graduate 138 boys and the Dudley School, Roxbury, 129.

The largest class from a girls' school will be 130 from the Girls' High School, South Boston. Other large mixed graduating classes are those of the Lewis School, Roxbury, with 184, and the Mather School, Dorchester, with 181.

In the Elihu Greenwood School the boy graduates outnumber the girls. The same is true of the Washington School, the John Cheverus School, the Harvard, John A. Andrew, Emerson, Warren, Comins, Washington Allston, Minot, Dearborn and Jefferson schools. In the U. S. Grant School there are an equal number graduating, forty-six boys and forty-six girls.

SEEK MILITANT AFTER ESCAPE IN MAN'S GARB

LONDON, June 20.—Scotland Yard has on every available man on the trail of Lillian Lenton, the accused militant arsonist, who escaped in man's clothes from Leeds, where she was held. Miss Lenton had been convicted of having started the fire in the Kew tea garden.

There is a feeling in police circles that Miss Lenton has fled the country. She has been a source of trouble since the first of the militant outbreaks. After being released from jail last March after a long hunger fast she was arrested at Doncaster, when she confessed that she, and not a woman on trial for the crime, had burned Westfield house, Doncaster. Miss Lenton began a hunger strike that ended in her residence in Leeds where she was to have been held pending her recovery.

Little hope is entertained for the recovery of Harold Hewitt, who suffered a fractured skull at Ascot when he tried to emulate Miss Davison's feat. He is still unconscious after the operation on his skull.

Saved His Mother, Gets Medal of Honor

Luscious Grapes are more Tasty than Dry Raisins

Dried-out raisins cannot be compared to Nature's luscious Grapes. Tobacco when pressed in Plug form has more flavor, fragrance and smoking quality than when sliced or granulated for convenience sake.

Chopping or granulating ruins the natural tobacco flavor, as it cannot retain its natural moisture, and every bit of evaporated moisture takes with it some of Nature's good tobacco flavor.

The only way to retain all the flavor is to put the whole leaves under pressure, into Plug form, covering it with a natural leaf wrapper: thereby retaining all of its natural flavor and moisture.

Prove this today by buying a plug of Master Workman tobacco. Whittle off a fresh pipe load; and enjoy a slow burning cool smoke of delicious flavor.

AUGUST Reduction Sale

I've Moved My Business Calendar 60 Days Ahead

Gigantic stocks of GEORGES beautiful Model Clothes of light and medium weight, for men and young men, prepared for TEN stores must now be sold through five.

I had so far progressed in my plans for the expansion of this great business that negotiations were completed and all stocks prepared for the opening of GEORGES stores in five additional cities this spring. But my efforts came to naught. I was incapacitated for more than 60 days by a serious illness and when I returned to business I was confronted by

A $321,000 EXCESS OF STOCK

In accord with the GEORGES policy, when this critical situation arose, I laid my case without hesitation before the Public, backing up my appeal with price reductions throughout my vast stocks such as I have never made in any previous year, before August. The first full week of this gigantic sale has eloquently demonstrated, in the greatest selling of my history, the wisdom of my confidence in the public to appreciate direct dealing and to judge extraordinary clothes values.

THE REDUCTIONS

$13.50 and $15 Garments	$9.50	$20.00 and $22.50 Garments	$14.50
$16.50 and $18 Garments	$12.50	$25 and $28 Garments	$16.50
$30.00 Garments	$19.50	$35.00 Garments	$24.50
$32.50 Garments	$22.50	$37.50 Garments	$27.50

$40 and $45 Garments $29.50

Nothing is reserved—all my two and three-piece Suits, lightweight Overcoats, odd Trousers and Outing Trousers, Raincoats, Etc., go at my deep August Reductions—from the lowest to the highest priced, from my smart Norfolks and English models to the most conservative styles, and from the fanciest fabrics and colors to plain blue and black serges.

PLANS 3 MORE QUERIES TO SIFT GRAVES AFFAIR

LONDON, June 20.—Balked once more today by the evasive replies of the government in the case of Aumgaard Karl Graves, Joseph King, M. P., came back with renewed vigor to the charge, and gave notice of three more questions which he will put on Tuesday next.

The Graves scandal will not down. The resort of the government in taking refuge behind the throne has not served to allay the persistent curiosity of members who are demanding to know the full reasons for releasing Graves from Barlinny Prison after he had served but three and a half months of an eighteen months' sentence for spying in the interests of Germany.

Both of Mr. King's questions today were addressed to the Secretary for Scotland. They were based upon the revelations Dr. Graves has made to the New York AMERICAN and were as follows:

"Whether he (the Secretary for Scotland) received any petition from the prisoner, or request from any other person, or from any official person or authority, praying that the royal prerogative of mercy should be extended to A. K. Graves.

"Whether he will state the grounds which induced his recommendation that the royal prerogative of mercy should be extended to A. K. Graves."

LONDON TRIES NEW CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

LONDON, June 20.—The Lancet, the leading medical publication in England, publishes today letters from Dr. Frederick Meinarto of Heidelberg, who is now residing in London, giving particulars of a new consumption cure discovered by him and called "contra-toxin."

Two hundred patients are now apparently cured, he asserts, after having been treated with this injection at the Margaret Street and Mount Vernon Hospitals. All of the patients were pledged to secrecy before the experimenting began. The doctors at the Margaret Street Hospital, who have been applying the treatment, positively refused to give any information or details, as they do not consider that the treatment has yet had a fair trial.

One of the doctors, however, said:

"This is a good thing," implying that he was disposed to believe in the efficiency of the cure.

Dr. Meinarto readily admitted that his new serum cannot be described as a perfect cure until after four or five years without a recurrence of the disease.

He stated definitely that he has no intention of going to America, but that the serum is now on the market and obtainable by any registered physician in London. He said that it is also being used in Germany. Some of the most prominent specialists in tuberculosis have been experimentally carrying out this treatment.

BOY OF EIGHT YEARS COMPLETELY BALD

Solid Crust Covered Head. Spread to Face. Face Mass of Sores Cracked and Running. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment Two Months. Well as Ever.

200 Columbus Ave., Suite 3, Boston, Mass.—"When my boy was eight years old he started with an itch on his head. I noticed small patches resembling dandruff appearing in several places over his head, where the hair had also fallen out. It rapidly spread all over the head and in less than three weeks he was completely bald. A solid crust covered the head resembling a cap. The crust had cracks that a watery substance oozed from all the time, and when he scratched it would bleed. It rapidly spread to his face and his eyes became inflamed and burned; he suffered severe pain. Then there were days that he lost his sight completely.

"His face by this time was a mass of sores, cracked and running, and badly swollen. He would scratch it in his sleep until it was as raw as a piece of beef and he all covered with blood. He looked unnatural, and cried most all the time. One of his ears was split at the top and also at the bottom. It was only a matter of a short time before it would have dropped off. I became so alarmed that I tied it up. A neighbor asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In two months of faithful treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was as well as ever." (Signed) Mrs. Nellie A. Stith, May 6, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c and Cuticura Ointment 50c are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞ Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

SUGAR LOBBY DENOUNCED BY DOCTOR WILEY

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, formerly chief of the Federal Bureau of Chemistry, who came to Boston for commencement at Harvard, told the AMERICAN today he had never agreed to deliver a series of lectures for the United States Beet Sugar Producers' Association, as charged at a hearing before the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee.

"The charge made by the letter supposedly written by Henry T. Oxnard, vice-president of the American Beet Sugar Company, to Sidney Ballou, that I had agreed to deliver a series of lectures in the interests of the beet sugar growers is a lie," said Dr. Wiley. He declared further:

It is true that after I left the government service and was considering propositions to earn a livelihood I was approached by a representative of the Beet Sugar Growers' Association.

I never accepted the proposal. I found on investigation that the proposition had been misrepresented to me. The charge that I had agreed to deliver a few lectures in the Middle West in the June preceding the national conventions of 1912 is an unqualified falsehood.

"Legalized Food Frauds."

If the Wilson administration believes the people will be satisfied with the legalized pure food frauds of the Remsen board it will find itself very much mistaken.

I think the AMERICAN is doing splendid work in its pure food campaign. The record it has made in the bills passed through the Legislature this year is really wonderful.

The people of New England have a right to feel thankful that they have such an ardent champion for the protection of their health and against food frauds.

I was sorry to hear that the AMERICAN was unable to secure a reorganization of the State Board of Health. It certainly needs it.

I think the AMERICAN made a fight against a board which is strongly entrenched, and consider the narrow margin by which the Board of Health won a moral victory for the AMERICAN.

I want to tell the people of New England that the AMERICAN and they are fortunate in having a man like Harry P. Cassidy to carry on the pure food work for them.

Praises Cassidy's Work.

I consider Cassidy the premier food investigator of the country. I know him to be an honest, conscientious investigator, fearless and persistent. He has the objective instinct necessary for the successful prosecution of such work. His results in Atlantic City show his effectiveness.

Perhaps Dr. Alsberg, in Washington, is having the same trouble I had with the Remsen board. I found the board much more effective as a brake on pure food advance than any brakes Mr. Mellen has on the locomotives of his railroads.

I understand it now rules that one-tenth of one per cent. of sulphur can be used as a preservative. If sulphur is good at all, why limit its use to one-tenth of one per cent.? How can a board say that one-tenth of one per cent. will not harm anybody and that an additional tenth of one per cent. will

Caught Spooning by Moving Pictures

CALIFORNIA, Pa., June 20.—A moving picture which showed them sitting on a rustic bench in a mossy glen of Hazel Park, was the cause of Miss Kathryn Boyd, a co-ed, and R. H. Crago, a student, being indefinitely suspended on the eve on their graduation at the State Normal School here today.

Harry Lauder in Role of Parson

LONDON, June 20.—Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, will appear in a new role in a church at Bristol next Sunday. He will preach a sermon and sing several hymns as solos. The 1,200 admission tickets were rapidly bought up and many people who were anxious to attend were disappointed.

Shaw Flays Asquith for 'Rabbit-Woman' Speech

LONDON, June 20.—George Bernard Shaw's letter to the London Times, criticising the English government for its cat and mouse treatment in the rearrest of Mrs. Pankhurst just before the funeral of Emily Wilding Davison, has caused widespread comment.

Owing to its importance, the AMERICAN prints the Shaw letter in full. It follows:

"I am quite confident that when I say that the moment chosen for the arrest of Mrs. Pankhurst Saturday last made the proceeding a revolting one. I am giving expression to the feelings of a large body of your readers. There was no necessity to rearrest her until after the funeral. Any official or minister, realizing the situation, would if he had a spark of decent feeling have taken care to order a postponement.

"As no such order was given we must conclude the government does not yet realize the situation. May I call attention to two new considerations? The first is that it is now clear that the plan of the Home Office is, first to relieve the worst tension of public opinion by turning Mrs. Pankhurst out of prison, and, then, by rigidly imprisoning her in a house in which she has taken refuge, produce all the effects of the closest confinement while escaping responsibility which would attach to those effects if they occurred in prison.

If Mrs. Pankhurst Dies.

"It is alleged Mrs. Pankhurst's condition is very serious. It is quite clear it cannot be very favorable, as Mrs. Pankhurst is not made of iron. Suppose Mrs. Pankhurst dies, will the government merely because it has contrived she shall die out of Holloway, still cry 'We don't care,' as it did by arresting Mrs. Pankhurst before Miss Davison's funeral, instead of after it?

"My second point is in the newly declared attitude of the Prime Minister in his debate on the Dickinson bill. Mr. Asquith for the first time opposed the franchise for the women explicitly on the ground that woman is not a female of the human species but a distinct and inferior species, naturally disqualified for voting as the rabbit is disqualified from voting.

"This is a very common opinion. Mohammed's efforts to discredit it fourteen centuries ago were lost on many Arabs as completely as on Mr. Asquith, but it makes the position extremely uncomfortable. A man may object to the proposed extension of suffrage for many reasons. He may hold that the whole business of the popular election is a delusion and that 'votes for women' is only its reduction to an absurdity.

"He may object to it as upsetting a convenient division of labor between the sexes. He may object to it because he dislikes a change or is interested in business or practices which women would use political power to suppress, but it is one thing to follow the prime minister who places one's mother on the footing of a rabbit.

"Many men would vote for anything rather than be suspected of the rabbit theory. It makes it difficult to vote for the Liberal party and then look the women of ones household in the face.

Will Hold Asquith Responsible.

"The situation is that if Mrs. Pankhurst dies public opinion will consider the government for which Mr. Asquith is in effect fully responsible will have executed her. Mr. Asquith will not be moved by that, in his opinion.

"It will matter just as much as killing a rabbit. I cannot convince him he is mistaken, but I can assure him that a very large section of the public will not agree with him.

"I suggest that the authorities, having had to let Mrs. Pankhurst out of prison, should now let her alone. There was something to be said for letting her out; there is nothing to be said for pursuing her now. She is out with a game of 'cat and mouse' that will produce on the public a feeling of vindictive assassination if she, like Miss Davison, should seal her testimony with her blood."

INVESTIGATE PLOT TO FREE TITICUT INSANE

TITICUT, June 20.—An investigation was begun today into the sources of outside aid furnished bold leaders of 100 insane criminal convicts at the prison here connected with the Bridgewater State Farm. The timely discovery of a broken lock in the main gate and of a concealed ladder is alone believed to have frustrated a plot to free the desperate insane prisoners in the seventeen-acre walled field.

Guard Folsom found that the lock had been broken and that a stout oak bar, which held the two halves of the doors together had been thrown to one side.

He immediately sounded the alarm. A heavy patrol of armed men spread about the section, while investigation showed that a ladder had been concealed beneath vines at the base of the twenty-foot wall.

Teetotaler, Even to Water, for 4 Years

HEMET, Cal., June 20.—Charles E. Reickhoff of this place has not touched water for four years. Neither has he taken liquor or any liquid save that secured by absorbing the juice of fruits. Some years ago Mr. Reickhoff, who is the son of a millionaire living at Orange City, Ia., determined to try a health cure of his own invention. He has lived in the open air every possible moment, drank nothing and ate nothing but nuts and fresh fruit. He says he is in perfect health.

Czarevitch Worse; Confined to Bed

ST PETERSBURG, June 20.—Grand Duke Alexis, the young Czarevitch, whose health has been failing since last September, when he was mysteriously injured in the groin, has taken a turn for the worse and cannot leave his bed. It was stated today that the heir to the Russian Crone has been worse since the Tsarevna divided a month ago, when he overtaxed his strength. Czar Nicholas is considering the advisability of sending to Germany for specialists.

PRICES ARE HIGHEST FOR THIRTY YEARS

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Wholesale prices of commodities in the United States last year were higher than at any time in the past thirty years, the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics announces. In the year wholesale prices advanced sharply, the most important feature being the marked increase in the great groups of farm products, food, fuel and lighting and metals and implements.

Fuel and lighting showed the greatest increase over 1911, the average being 9.4 per cent., while coke increased 46.2 per cent. and crude Pennsylvania petroleum 21.2 per cent.

Food, as a group, increased 6.2 per cent., the most pronounced increase being in corn meal, 27.9 per cent., and canned tomatoes, 27.1 per cent.

Farm products increased 5.7 per cent., the principal increase being in sheep, 24.4 per cent., and cattle, 29.4 per cent.

Metals and implements increased 3.6 per cent., the highest advance being copper, 3.8 per cent., and spelter, 20.9 per cent.

House furnishings disclosed increases from 2.3 to 10.9 per cent., while drugs and chemicals advanced in price 2.2 per cent.

Clothes and clothings increased only 0.9 per cent., boots and shoes 15.8 per cent., carpets 9.9 per cent., print cloths 9.3 per cent., and leather 9 per cent.

Lumber and building materials composed the only group showing a decrease, the decline being 2.1 per cent.

'Many Beacon Hill Graduates Won't Be Back,' Says Foss

Friday we have graduation exercises on Beacon Hill. We graduate about 280, and I am satisfied that many of them will not come back for post-graduate work.—Governor Foss, at Harvard Commencement.

Girl Throws Ball 150 Feet In the Air

HARTFORD, June 20.—With an audience of over 1,000, including priests and sisters, as well as parents of the graduates, Miss Mathilda Unda of Brooklyn, a member of the graduating class of St. Joseph's Seminary, a select school, threw a league ball over the school building of four stories with all the ease and abandon of a big leaguer. The ball landed on the other side of the school, after having shot into the air a distance of 150 feet.

Boston Auto in Portsmouth Crash

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 20.—A large touring car, driven by Roland Sharpe of Boston, and a car owned and run by Dr. C. W. Hanunford of this city, crashed at the junction of Maple and South Mill streets and were badly damaged.

MAYOR HITS AT JUMP IN SCHOOL SALARY LISTS

Mayor Fitzgerald, in vetoing the orders of the School Committee establishing an associate director of the extended use of the public schools at a salary of $2,500 and an assistant manager of evening centres at a salary of $1,200, said:

The fact that the expenses of the School Department have increased 40 per cent. in the past four years may be explained in part by the increase in paid school officials.

The Mayor stated that if the School Committee had money to spare it should be expended in other directions more advantageous to the school children. He suggests that the work be done by one of the six school superintendents, who receive $5,000 a year.

The Mayor declared the School Committee rejected his suggestion that graduates of the public schools be given a field day on Franklin Park next Saturday, because it would cost about $2,000, as he understood. He wrote that, of course, the committee spends so much money in high salaried officials and in increasing salaries of less favored ones that it has no money to spend on entertaining the public school children. There are two days in the year when the committee should see that entertainment was furnished, the cadet field day and close of schools.

SENATOR CHARLES F. M'CARTHY OF MARLBORO

This is a Democratic Senator

who honors his party by keeping his party pledges no matter how powerful or how tempting and insidious the railroad lobby may be.

Senator McCarthy supported Governor Foss in his effort to stop the Legislature from surrendering to the New Haven Railroad the street railways in more than half the State. He also led the fight in behalf of the pure food bills, eight of which became laws.

Remember Senator McCarthy. He is a faithful public servant.

Auto Hits Motorcyclist.

Carl Mellen of South Hamilton, who suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and a cut on the head when thrown from his motorcycle in a collision with an automobile driven by George T. Ables of Wellesley, will recover.

Train Hits Three Men.

NEW BRITAIN, Ct.—June 20.—An inquest will be held on the killing of one man, the seriously injuring of another, and minor hurts to a third, when a suburban New York, New Haven & Hartford train ran them down.

DEMOCRATS IN SENATE CAUCUS TAKE UP TARIFF

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The Underwood tariff bill as amended by the Senate Finance Committee was submitted to a caucus of the Senate Democrats today. This marks the last stage of the bill before it is finally reported to the Senate and made the target for Republican attacks. Hundreds of amendments have been made to the bill.

As reported to the caucus the free list is greatly extended, and only a few duties are higher than those imposed by the House. Despite this it is calculated that the bill annually will earn $5,000,000 more revenue than the bill as passed by the House. Practically all changes have the unanimous support of the finance committee.

The question of free print paper, however, was left to the decision of the caucus. The Senate committee first proposed to admit free paper valued below four cents per pound, and then retreated to the House maximum of two and a half cents.

Senator Simmons, chairman of the Senate finances committee, did not expect to meet strong opposition in caucus. The fight against free sugar is now regarded as perfunctory. All other business of the Senate practically will be suspended until the end of the caucus. It may last ten days.

Moose Robbed on Newport Outing

NEWPORT, June 20.—Five Newport Moose had a great time at the Crescent Park outing yesterday, in their neat little muslin and seersucker suits, till they returned to the hotel where they had left their clothes, watches and some money.

Nothing was left in the room except a few vests that the burglars hadn't fancied, and a shirt. The rest had vanished, and a window from which the screen had been removed, and a ladder told the story.

The Moose who lost their pelts were F. Thornton, J. E. Goss, D. J. White, H. Kunz and J. H. Hardy.

$35.00 SERGE SUITS AT $25.00

WOMEN'S SERGE SUITS

We've been silent about Serge Suits. That's because we've been waiting for these. We bore with the manufacturer as one delay followed another. They are here at last—A new and distinctive model that you are sure to like—Long three-quarter cutaway coat; slightly draped skirt. Made of navy or white serge—"men's-wear" weave.

The firm, hard-twisted fabric is almost wiry and will yield invincible service to the very last fibre. Nothing better for Summer travelling and outing.

Buying or not buying is a mere matter of saving money.

NEW CHALLIS COATS $12.75

Soft, billowy Challis. Was there ever a stuff more ideal for Summer Coats? We think not. And the Paisley patterns—quaint but beautiful. Mellow colors that charm and rest the eye—suggesting the grace of old-time shawls that came from the Valley of Cashmere.

You'll see these Coats, so oddly draped, at the seashore and wherever else Fashion gathers.

MIKADO COATS OF CHARMEUSE
REAL VALUE $22.50—SPECIAL $15.00

An Oriental mode that lightens American dress. They are made of black satin charmeuse—with plain or fancy lining. Just right to wear with afternoon or dancing frocks.

SAVE FIFTY IN BLAZE AT THE SOUTH END

Fifty families, estimated to include from 200 to 250 persons, living in tenement blocks in Hudson and Curve streets, South End, were carried, assisted or driven to the street by policemen early today, during a two-alarm fire which menaced their homes and caused a damage of $35,000 in the four-story brick building at No. 161 Albany street, occupied by the American Paper Stock Company, Incorporated.

Thirteen horses in the stable of Howes & Co., Natick Express, at No. 120 Hudson street, at the rear of the burning building, were saved by policemen, who chopped their way into the stalls and cut halters.

Flames bursting through the windows of the building in Albany street, threw the neighborhood into a panic. The district is populated mostly by people who speak but little English, and the police, after dragging them from their beds, were forced to drive them like sheep to places of safety.

Mrs. Abrahams to Be Buried Sunday

Wife of Central Labor Union Secretary Was Philanthropist.

The funeral of Mrs. Henry Abrahams, wife of the secretary of the Boston Central Labor Union, who died at the Carney Hospital, will be held from the family residence, No. 12 Marble street, Roxbury, at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

The wife of one of the most widely known trade union officials, and herself actively interested in social uplift work.

MAYOR ORDERS PARKS OPENED TO MOTHERS

It is far better to have dead grass in the parks than dead children in the tenements. The parks are for the benefit of the people after all.—Vincent Astor in reply to criticism of the use of Central Park greens by the public.

I agree with a prominent New York resident that it is better to have dead grass in the parks than dead babies in the tenements.—Mayor Fitzgerald.

Declaring that he agrees with Vincent Astor, who said in reply to a criticism of the use of New York public parks by the public that it is "better to have dead grass in the parks than dead babies in the tenements," Mayor Fitzgerald, as a result of the fining of Mrs. Ellen Fraser and Mrs. Rose Zuleman, for sitting on the grass in the Common, declares that women in the future SHALL have the right to use Boston's public parks.

He has given orders that the grass plots of the parks shall be thrown open to women and children, who may now "walk, sit, or lie on the grass, in hot weather, as they see fit."

Prominent citizens are indignant at the police enforcement of the rigid "keep-off-the-grass" ordinance, which shuts tired women and children from the use of the only cool spot many of them can find.

Meanwhile the cases of Mrs. Ellen Fraser, who was fined $1 for sitting on the grass with her two children, and Mrs. Rose Zuleman, who was fined one cent for a similar offence, will be taken to the Supreme Court, if necessary, according to Attorney Scharton, who appealed for his clients against the decision of Judge Burke.

"I intend to make a test case of this," he declared. Mrs. Fraser claims that the officer who made the arrest handled her roughly. The officer claims that Mrs. Fraser knocked his helmet off and tried to scratch his face.

Boston citizens were asking today why the police are not required to enforce another clause in the "keep-off-the-grass" ordinance—that which applies to benches for the exclusive use of women and children.

It is known to everybody who visits the Common that every day, and all day, benches marked for women's exclusive use are crowded with men, and little or no attempt is made to enforce the law respecting them.

It may be that we're old-fashioned, or not onto our job, or something of the sort, in not having any $18 or $20 suits to sell at $12.50, nor any $45 or $50 suits at fifteen-ninety-eight.

But that doesn't worry us very much, because no one else is selling such suits at such prices either, frequent announcements to the contrary notwithstanding.

On the other hand, we feel pretty well satisfied with ourselves when we look around and see men's clothes—even on the so-called "special" occasions—being offered at $2.50 to $10 more per suit than our regular prices.

And we might add that so many men have awakened to the true state of affairs that this has come to be by far the biggest and busiest men's store in New England.

Shea's Mother Demands Truth About Killing of Son

A warrant was issued from Boston Municipal Court today for the arrest of Patrolman Charles W. Miller on a charge of manslaughter in shooting and killing Ralph P. Shea, a South End boy, early Bunker Hill Day.

He was arrested later.

The open court proceeding which will result from this warrant will fulfill the demand of Mrs. Nora Shea, the widowed mother of the dead boy, for the facts in the tragedy. Mrs. Shea demands "the truth" in the case.

The manslaughter warrant against Miller follows a hearing yesterday before Judge Sullivan, at which Captain Ainsley C. Armstrong and Sergeant Jeremiah Mealey presented witnesses and made application for the warrant. Judge Sullivan took the case under advisement.

Miller was on duty last night, driving a patrol wagon, so he was presumably at his home at Orient Heights when the warrant was issued.

Retain Counsel.

John P. Shea, brother of Ralph Shea, has decided to retain an attorney to gather and present evidence before District Attorney Pelletier to secure some redress for the death of his brother, regardless of the outcome in the Municipal Court.

The family and friends of Shea will insist on a Grand Jury investigation into his death. They will base their claim for this action on the statements of those who saw the trouble start and end in the effect that the police have neglected to interview a single witness whose testimony was not favorable to the patrolman.

John Healey, a neighbor; Mrs. McDonald, dressmaker; one of the livery stable employed there, and several others whose names have been mentioned, met the attorney of the Shea family and gave him their versions of the shooting.

Captain Ainsley C. Armstrong of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation and Sergeant Jeremiah Mealey of Lagrange Street Station, with which Miller is connected, took about ten witnesses before Judge Sullivan yesterday to give their accounts of the shooting.

The captain asked for a warrant for Miller's arrest on a charge of manslaughter, in accordance with the usual police procedure, to refer the case to the courts. Judge Sullivan took the matter under advisement after hearing the stories of the police and witnesses.

James Connor, who gets up at two every morning to go to work, and who lives at No. 113 Warrenton street, told a new story of the shooting today. He said:

I waked when my alarm went off, and found my mother already awake and at the window. Later she told me that she heard someone shout, "Kill him, Ralph." Just as I woke, I heard a report right beneath my window, and in five seconds another.

I jumped out of bed to the window and saw a policeman running from Park square, with a revolver in his hand. A little later, another policeman came down Warrenton street and rang the box at the corner. He said:

"This is Miller. Send an ambulance to No. 105 Warrenton street right away. I've got in a fight with a fellow, and I've shot him."

Mother Gives Story.

Evidently the officer at the station didn't understand, for Miller repeated, "This is Miller at No. 105 Warrenton. Send me an ambulance."

The ambulance clattered up a little later.

The statement of Mr. Conner's mother that she heard a voice shout, "Kill him, Ralph," will be viewed by her police as another proof of their contention that Miller had a "tough beat" to cover. Ralph was the plain youth, and the murderous advice he received from the unknown speaker was obviously against the policeman.

The mother of the dead young man calls attention, in her statement to the AMERICAN today, to the good reputation her family has borne in the Warrenton-street neighborhood.

She cites the coming of over 4,000 people to the house, to express sympathy, as proof of neighborhood esteem. Mrs. Shea said:

I have been a widow for twelve years. Ralph was all left to me by our good standing in the neighborhood. I have two sons, John and Ralph, now dead, and two daughters, Eleanore and Florence. During the day yesterday over 4,000 people visited our home to express their sympathies and to view the body, and I think that is a pretty fair testimony of my good standing in the community.

I have not made any plans whatsoever. I am too grief-stricken. I really have had no time to think, for it has been a terrible ordeal for me and I'm quite worn out with the strain and anxiety.

Of course we want to know the truth, and if anybody is to blame I hope he gets his reward.

God has been my strength through it all, and without His help I never could have endured it all. When I get time to think the thing over, then I will decide what is best to do. All I care to say now is that the people have been very thoughtful and kind to me and I take this opportunity to thank them.

Agree on Two Shots.

Practically all witnesses agree that Miller fired two shots, though the patrolman said in court that "at last, in self-defence, I drew my revolver and fired without aiming—fired at random—one shot."

Captain Armstrong himself is quoted as saying there can be no doubt but what Miller fired twice.

Examination of Miller's revolver right after the shooting must have settled that point for the police department.

Otto J. Hilderbrandt, a wood carver living at No. 149 Eliot street, opposite the end of Warrenton street, said today he is positive two shots were fired, close together. Hilderbrandt's statement is:

I was sitting in my window, which looks up Warrenton street, getting a bit of fresh air when I heard a scuffling of feet, and on looking out I saw a crowd congregated on Warrenton street near Eliot.

There was loud talking and shortly I heard a cry, at which time two men who were standing near the police box on Eliot street ran around onto Warrenton. I did not witness the actual shooting, in fact I didn't leave the house, but I did hear two shots fired.

Argument of Police.

One of the most positive statements blaming the policeman in this case is that made by "Jack" Moriarty, who has been quoted in the AMERICAN, thus:

"Miller, in my opinion, cannot claim that he shot in self-defence. Shea was fleeing, and Miller could have captured him without shooting."

On the other hand, Miller's brother officers say that Miller probably had no intention of even hitting Shea, to say nothing of killing him. The average police argument runs this way:

"Here was a man on a bad beat on a troublesome night. He had been attacked by a gang, knocked down, trampled upon, his uniform torn, his helmet knocked off, his club wrenched away and himself made 'dazed and dizzy,' as Miller related it.

"Miller staggers to his feet, draws his revolver and the gang scatters. Miller runs after Shea and fires, thinking to shoot 'at random,' as he said in court. The man was pretty near all in from the rough handling he had received." He probably thought he was shooting over Shea's head but he shot too low in the half light, and he hit almost doubled condition.

If Miller had intended to kill Shea—that is, if he had had to shoot Shea to save someone else, he would have fired at Shea's back, not at his head. And, if he had intended merely to bring him down, he would have shot at Shea's legs.

Police Regulations.

The police regulations instruct an officer to protect life and property and to prevent crime, which includes quelling disturbances.

A revolver may be used by an officer only in cases of absolute emergency, to protect life and property, to save his own life, and, if the case is grave enough, to stop a fugitive.

Joseph Guppe, a waiter living on the third floor at No. 108 Warrenton street and employed at the Copley Plaza Hotel, a new witness, said today:

I heard a fellow come along the street from Eliot street and say to the bunch: "Cut it out, fellows; there are three cops around the corner on Eliot street." Then I heard the officer ring in his box at the corner near Warrenton street. After this the gang scattered, and one fellow went across the street to No. 105 and asked a girl there to throw down his coat and hat from the second story window. This she did.

By that time Officer Miller was at the corner, in front of Louis' cigar store. There is a lamp post at that point, and the policeman paused near this and looked up the street.

The fellow who got the coat and hat from the up-stairs tenement across the street dashed into the alley-way between Nos. 107 and 109 Warrenton street. At this juncture the girl who threw up coats in write No. 105, with the officer in close pursuit.

With one foot inside the entry and the other on the sidewalk, Miller stood there and fired into the darkened entry.

Other officers came up on the run, and pretty soon Miller came out and ran up the box again for the wagon.

Says Gun Was Lowered.

Richard Dunn says he was in the doorway at No. 103 Warrenton street, with Shea's hand on his back, when Miller fired the fatal bullet.

Mrs. George Flynn says:

Shea seemed to be trying to duck across the street to the same doorway. Then Miller's helmet fell off, they were running so hard. Shea piled into the doorway just after Dunn. Miller ran up to the doorway and stood. For several seconds he waited, looking into the doorway. He had stopped running.

Then he deliberately lowered the gun, which he had lifted up above his head, and fired into the doorway. His hand with the gun was inside the doorway when he fired.

Miss Katherine Diggins, sister of Ralph Shea's friend, Matthew Diggins, said:

I was talking with Shea just before the trouble started. He was perfectly sober. We were all on the steps. Some one told about a new song that Ralph knew. I asked him to sing it. It was "San Francisco Bound," and he sang it in a low tone as well that he had to sit laughing.

Then we went into the house. A little later I was looking out the window and saw Kate Bresnahan and Louise Costello talking to Miller at the corner. While Kate was talking to the policeman, Shea, Griffin, Dunn and Collins came along.

I could see that Shea said something to Miller, but I could not hear. Suddenly Miller reached for Shea, catching him with his left hand, and drawing his stick with the right.

I saw Miller hit Shea over the head four times with the club. The sounds were sickening. Then Shea closed in to avoid the rain of blows from the club.

At no time did I see anyone close to Miller except Shea, and last was when Miller grabbed him and started to beat him over the head. I am positive that Shea did not have a club in his hand. If any club was found near him, it was placed there by some patrolman, after the shooting.

Anyone who seemed to sympathize with the poor fellow who was shot was told to get into the house. No policeman talked with them or took any story except from those who seemed to favor Miller. As for the story which the police sent out about twenty men attacking Miller, it is a deliberate lie.

AMERICAN SHOWS 5,000 CHILDREN 101 WILD WEST

The largest audience that ever assembled to witness a regular performance of the Miller Brothers Wild West show came together yesterday afternoon at the 101 Ranch show grounds.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 children were admitted as the guests of the Miller Brothers and the AMERICAN. Every available inch of space on the nine bleachers held some small boy or girl who sat glued to his seat for more than two hours, too intent upon the wonders before him to talk to his neighbors or to do more than open his mouth in wonderment and laughter.

Every part of the city was represented and children from the North End sat shoulder to shoulder with those from Roxbury.

There was not a dull moment for the excited youngsters and only once did the performance become too realistic for the comfort of those sitting in the front rows. One of the more savage steers tried to vault the rope fence that divides the arena from the spectators, but an alert cowboy sent his lariat sizzling through the air and landed it safely over the long curling horns of the animal.

The AMERICAN wants to thank the Miller Brothers and every performer in their wonderful show on behalf of the thousands of small guests for the conscientious performance, given with as much spirit and care as though the participants were exhibiting before adults. No act was cut short and nothing eliminated just because two-thirds of the spectators were under the age of fourteen.

All the children were accompanied by adults who were as interested in what they saw as were the children themselves. Special cars stood ready to take many from the grounds to their homes or to the institutions in which they belong.

Although occasionally some small youngster would fall through the seats and land on the soft earth underneath he would pick himself up and crawl back again as best he could. This actually happened a half dozen times much to the enjoyment of those who were fortunate enough to escape the plunge.

The policemen and clowns, the Indians and the attack on the emigrant train with the burning of the prairie schooner were among the favorite exhibits according to heated arguments heard as the children left the show grounds.

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT TODAY IN THE MARKET

The first apples of the year arrived in Boston this week on the Norfolk boat. There were only twelve baskets of them and they were eagerly snapped up for the hotel trade at very high prices. Early apples from the Carolinas will be coming in greater quantities from this time on and will become cheaper.

Mississippi tomatoes are beginning to arrive in Boston. They are very fine and sell for about 15 cents a pound.

Quantities of Connecticut peas and a very few local grown peas are coming in, but they command high prices, ranging from 75 cents a peck upward.

California fruits are arriving in Boston at the rate of about two carloads a day at present, and the quantity is increasing daily. At present only peaches, apricots, plums and cherries are coming, but other fruits will be in soon.

Blackberries, blueberries and gooseberries from the South are very rare. At this time these small fruits should be arriving in quantities, but there seems to be a scarcity to the southward.

Winter apples have almost disappeared from the market. There are a few barrels of western cold storage apples coming in from day to day, but they are poor in quality and high priced.

Native strawberries are in the market, but most of the berries received by Boston commission men are coming from Connecticut at present. Native berries sell for 30 to 60 cents a box, the latter price being demanded for extra fresh picked fancy marshals.

The arrivals of southern and southwestern grown cantaloupes are increasing and the price is falling. They sell for 6 to 15 cents each at present.

Favor Postoffice Square Terminal

The Chamber of Commerce declares that the changing of the eastern terminus of the Boylston street subway from Park street to or near Postoffice square will give the Boylston street subway a practical connection with the business district of Boston. The chamber committee considering the matter has reported that the plan for a terminus at Park street is defective.

Big Aluminum Increase.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Sixty-five million pounds of aluminum produced in the United States was used in this country in 1912, as compared with 46,125,000 pounds in 1911, according to a report of the Geological Survey today. Imports of aluminum have greatly increased.

JURY MUST FIND IF M'CARTY DIED IN 'PRIZE FIGHT'

CALGARY, Alberta, June 20. The jury in the case of Arthur Pelley, the pugilist on trial, charged with the death of Luther McCarty, was dismissed by the court during a fight with Pelley, both agreeing as to whether the fatal contest of May 24 was a boking match or a prize fight. Crown Prosecutor James Short, in addressing the jury, asserted that the men aimed by Pelley since McCarty entered the jail and died in the latter's cell during McCarty's bout.

If a boxing contest, said he, ... ought not be guilty, if a prize fight was illegal, and Pelley, if he struck the blow, was guilty of manslaughter.

William McCarney, McCarty's manager, Dr. H. H. Mosher, who conducted the autopsy; Referee Smith of Chicago and Joseph H. Howe, a local newspaperman were among the witnesses.

McCarty was in excellent condition when he entered the ring according to McCarney.

Dr. Mosher testified death was due to a slight hemorrhage on the fourth cerebral convolution, which resulted in a temporary blood clot, he said, causing pressure on the brain.

Star Lightweights to Clash at Gloucester

Two members of the Lenox A. C. of Gloucester will have a chance to peek at one of the best lightweights in the East on next Monday night when Johnny Kid Alberts hooks up with George Algor for twelve rounds. Alberts and Algor should put up one of the best bouts seen in that city this season.

Patsy DeLuca of the West End will swap punches with Roly McDonald of St. John for ten rounds in the semi-windup, and as both boys are strangers a rugged contest should result. In the opening bout Eddie Wallace will box six rounds with Young Morley of Roxbury, and the other bout will show Tommy McFarland of the North End and Kid Lee of Chelsea for six rounds.

There will be thirty-four rounds of boxing in all, and it looks on paper like the best show staged in Gloucester this season.

MITCHELL'S SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

ONE of the features of the last game with the Tigers was the catch of a line drive by Lewis in a way that one doesn't see once in a dog's age. It came in the second inning. There were two out and nobody was on, so nothing depended on the play except to get the third man out if possible. Moriarty drove a screeching liner between Janvrin and Gardner. Lewis came tearing in as soon as he saw the course the ball was taking. He took only half a dozen steps before the ball got to his feet. It looked as though he couldn't even stop the liner, much less catch it, but while still on the dead run he stuck down his gloved hand and grabbed the ball just before it touched the ground.

His anybody seen a play just like this one since Crowley made one at the Old South End Grounds in 1878?

MAYOR JOHN F. HURLEY of Salem saw the game and he announced that it was the first game of baseball he ever saw in his life. He met General Taylor in the grandstand and it developed that they were both at the siege of Port Hudson, in 1863, though neither knew the other was there until yesterday. His Honor was dressed in his regulation frock coat, high hat, and white string tie. An immense piece of ice rested on the bosom of his shirt.

"A small boy asked me for a penny on the street today," remarked the Mayor of Salem. "I asked him who he was Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and he said 'John F. Hurley.' I gave him five cents for that."

His Honor, who promises to see many more games at Fenway Park, created quite a stir in the club offices with his breezy manner. He was unanimously voted a live wire.

WE missed the red-haired yells and freckled-faced exhortations of Manager Hugh Jennings yesterday. He was not on the coaching lines for the first time since he became manager of the Tigers years ago. Doubtless he was off scouting for pitchers. He needs them more than he needs another Ty Cobb.

IT was a battle of French against the Irish and the score shows which nation won. Dubuc and Rondeau were the battery for Detroit, at the particular request of a delegation of rooters who came up from Woonsocket while O'Brien and Carrigan were the battery for Boston.

CARRIGAN has refused to pass Cobb deliberately in the series just ended. In the very thick-ish inning of each fray the great Tyrus had a chance to break up the game. There were two on bases and two out. If Carrigan were one run behind Cobb had a ready made two base hits. Everybody thought he would be temporarily insane first. Carrigan wouldn't have it that way. He crouched and gave Bedient the sign and the latter put the ball just where Carrigan wanted it—rather low and on the inside. Cobb swung at it, but only tapped it to the box and Bedient had the easiest ball of a time in throwing him out. That ended the game.

THE Detroits have played four games at Fenway Park and a pretty clear idea can be formed as to why they are not higher in the American League race. It is easy to see that they are very badly off for pitchers. At bat they are always dangerous. Cobb, Crawford, Gainer, Stanage, Vitt and Veach are liable to break up a game any time they get the chance, but the pitchers are so poor that it is not difficult to fathom their curves and bat out a victory on them. Jennings works, about all the pitchers he had in the series against the Red Sox and not one of them looked like the real thing.

THE visit of the Western clubs ended with the last game against Detroit. The Red Sox have not done so badly against the invaders. They won two and lost two in the Chicago games. They won two and lost one against Cleveland. They won four straight against the Browns and won three out of four against Detroit. Total, 11 won and 4 out.

TODAY Stahl and his band are in Philadelphia for a tough series. Wood will probably pitch the opening game this afternoon. The Speed Boys are handicapped without Wagner and will have to play at top speed and show some fine pitching to make a stand against the Mackmen. Gee whiz, but wouldn't the Boston crew like to take five straight from the Connect. Such a thing would liven up the race, wouldn't it?

O'BRIEN retired the side on three pitched balls in the first inning. Bush flied to Hooper, Vitt flied to Speaker and Yerkes threw out Crawford. But Buck didn't retire the side on three pitched balls in the eighth. With two down Cobb hit for three bases, Veach hit for two bases and Gainer singled.

HOT LINERS

Father Penn still holds the fort. The Athletics star shines out but faintly while the Fiddler is somewhat bothered by the spectre of the onrushing Giants.

* * *

Cincinnati outhit the Giants, but Matheson proved an enigma in the pinches, and McGraw's clan made it four straight over the Reds.

* * *

After his team had lost three straight, King Alexander took the unruly Cubs.

* * *

The Superbas are using their bats with telling effect these days. They have made seventeen runs in the four games against St. Louis, knocking eighteen hits in yesterday's set-to.

* * *

The Yankees are trying hard to get out of the cellar position. They scalped a victory over St. Louis, the team across them in the race for the pennant.

* * *

Ty Cobb drew a title money to Joe Jackson for batting honors. Ty all for .400 yesterday, while the Sox slicer one annexed carry a single.

* * *

The Naps have a Stone age per cent class on the trip and the Stone edge out, losing eight out of fifteen games played.

* * *

Falkenberg made a went down to defeat when the Senators knocked him out of the box early in the game and secured a commanding lead.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20. The champion Red Sox arrive here for a series of six games with the Athletics. The coming battles will determine the status of the Boston team in the American League race. The Sox have been playing a slashing game of ball lately and if they can win the series from the Mackmen they will have to be still considered as pennant possibilities.

The games are sure to be hard fought. Each team will try to headline in each clash and some red-hot baseball is expected for the fans.

"Smoky Joe" Wood will probably open the series today for the Red Sox. The speed king has regained a good deal of his old time form and is confident of winning from Mack's crew.

Eddie Plank may do the honors on the mound for the locals. He has not pitched since Monday, when he downed the White Sox, and he is good on Lajoie. If Wood and Plank are the opposing pitchers a fine game is on to decide but a battle between these two star hurlers.

Red Sox Tickets Free.

Watch for the little numbered checks now being distributed ahead of the Boston AMERICAN. Each check contains a total of one hundred numbers in a group printed in the "SPORTING EXTRA EDITION" of each day.

Those numbers now being printed are duplicates of numbers on tickets which gave seats to the Sox, Braves or Fed games. If you, Mr. Fan, put a check from one of these checks on each ticket you have or may have for them.

All you have to do is to compare the numbers on each check with the set of numbers printed in the "SPORTING EXTRA EDITION" of the AMERICAN next when a duplicate of the number which is on the check you hold appears in the AMERICAN you need send same to the Promotion Dept., No. 5 Winthrop square, and you will receive a free ticket to any one of the Red Sox games on the home grounds.

Last year thousands of AMERICAN readers were guests of this paper at Fenway Park and, at the expense of the AMERICAN helped root for a 1912 pennant.

Watch your numbers. Usually each check of the numbers on your check appears in the "SPORTING EXTRA EDITION" of the AMERICAN, it means a free Red Sox seat at FOUR YOU and is best in the ground is

Coatless Golfers Stagger English

LONDON, June 20. Fashionable England especially that part which goes in for golf or other sports is in a state of astonishment bordering under the weight of a novel American fashion. One of the American visitors competitors in the golf championship at Hoylake appeared upon the links before a fashionable gallery in his shirt sleeves and the shock was so staggering that a couple of veteran colonels on the verge dropped the tea cups from which they were drinking.

Letters are being written to the London satirical papers are being interviewed and the suffragette outrages are temporarily forgotten for the time sin.

Bold Is Not with St. Louis Team

According to Charles Babb's father Harry Bold first baseman is not signed to play with the St. Louis American League baseball club but did he have a contract with New York at the St. Louis team but has failed to sign. He did go to Hoylake he did go to Boston and he did he have several of his friends.

Vermont's Rally Wins.

Pickwick Ale on tap

"Here, waiter," shouted the stranger, "glasses round, and a good bitter hop ale, plenty of it, to our good friend Pickwick."

Thus spoke my friend Jingle.

Today the demand is for Pickwick Ale. It has that same bitter hop flavor that Jingle called for in 1830.

When you want a good ale, just look for a Pickwick Ale sign.

More Than Five Thousand New Friends Made for These New Shops for Men in One Day!

GOING SOME? Yes, but you should have seen the shirts! It isn't boasting or strutting to say that Boston men never before saw anything such as this in the way of a shirt congress. A dozen or more of our friendly competitors came in, looked things over, and unstintedly pronounced this THE Shirt Sale in all Boston's history. A good many of them bought—for their own personal use. "Why not?" asked one. "I can't get anything like this at wholesale."

JUST GETTING STARTED. That's the best of it. Not a one-day event—good for three or four whopper days. Cream won't be skimmed off today or tomorrow. Particularly in the higher values (which means the best values) men will find that stocks are new and unrestricted as to sizes and styles. Actual values run from $1.50 to $10; sale prices 95c to $4.85. Large majority of silks—and this is a great year for silk shirts.

ANOTHER EVENT AS GOOD. Today and Saturday we are selling MEN'S BLUE SERGE SUITS, of $22.50 to $32 value, at $17.50. This is the kind of event one would expect in the latter part of August. And then you would be lucky to find such fabrics and workmanship. You will agree with us that these blue serge suits are wonders at or near the price.

THOUSANDS MORE FRIENDS. They must be added to the rolls within a few days. Not only will the shirts and the suits bring them, but FILENE SPECIAL COLLARS at 75c the half dozen instead of $1, and WASH TIES at 25c instead of 45c will help. In fact, all over the men's shops will be found friend-makers.

WHY? We Are Putting the Filene Men's Store on the Map—For Keeps—This Year. Next Year or the Year After Won't Do!

HARVARD FRESHMEN EIGHT AND VARSITY FOUR WIN FIRST RACES FROM YALE

CRIMSON FRESHIES BEAT THE BLUE BY 1¼ LENGTHS; FOUR BY 6 LENGTHS.

NEW LONDON, Ct., June 20.—Harvard won both the varsity four, and the freshman eight races on the Thames here today.

In spite of the pouring rain, thousands of spectators saw the events from boats, trains and automobiles.

The varsity four rowed the two miles, upstream, in eleven minutes and fifty-two seconds to win in the first race.

The official time for the Freshman race was: Harvard, 10 minutes 41 seconds; Yale, 10 minutes 45 seconds.

The dual victory of Harvard this morning was a triumph for the American style of rowing, which the Harvard oarsmen use, against the English stroke, which was introduced for the first time in an American intercollegiate regatta by Yale's crews.

The varsity four won easily—by six lengths, but the freshmen had a harder tussle, and finally won by only a length and a quarter, after Yale had made a spectacular fight for the lead.

The fours raced first. The rain was so heavy that there was talk of postponing the events—but later a slackening of the downpour decided the officials to continue. The Harvard four had an easy time—pulling steadily away after the first half mile had been rowed on even terms. When they finished the Yale four was wobbling along six lengths behind. The Yale men were completely rowed out.

Yale Made Game Fight.

The freshman race started the day's enthusiasm to a higher pitch, for it was stubbornly fought all the way. Odds on Harvard to win the big race this afternoon climbed as a result of the victories of the morning, but even at two to one, there was little Yale money in sight.

The freshmen started their race at 10.32. At 10.15 the Harvard freshmen crew paddled out from behind the line of yachts and came down to the starting point. The wind had freshened and made choppier going. The Harvard crew paddled around in the deluge and practiced starting. The referee's boat came up back of the start and began making loud inquiries for the Yale shell. The Eli crew finally came down the river and got into position at 10.30.

The tide swung the Harvard boat across the channel and after No. 1 had worn himself out trying to get in position the boat broke loose from the stakeboat and went up stream a few lengths and back watered into position.

At 10.32 the boats were in position and the pistol started them on their way. There was a roar from the observation train as Harvard caught the water a fraction of a second ahead of her rival and they both shot away from the mark. They were rowing a thirty-six stroke, and at the first quarter both crews settled down. At the half-mile Harvard was leading, Yale trailing two lengths behind.

Coming up to one-mile point, Yale was rowing strong and closing up on Harvard. At the mile Yale was a length behind.

Yale began to pull up on Harvard in a splendid rush of speed. At the mile and a quarter they were even. Harvard then spurted and rowed away from Yale. Open water showed between the boats at the mile and three-eighths. Harvard increased its lead to two lengths at the one and three-quarter, rowing easily.

Harvard was four lengths ahead at the mile and five-eighths, Yale closing up a little, but still far behind. At a mile and seven-eighths Yale was less than two lengths behind. But their final efforts were too late, and Harvard won by a length and a quarter.

Yale Four Gets Better Start.

Harvard won the four-oared varsity race, which was the first of the three rowed today. Yale started off slightly in the lead. The Harvard crew soon increased its stroke and passed Yale before the first mile post. The Crimson aggregation gradually increased its lead, finishing nearly six lengths ahead of the Yale crew.

The Harvard crew were stroking close to forty as it crossed the finish line its oarsmen finished in excellent condition, but the Yale crew was visibly fatigued.

This race marks the first test of the relative merits of the American and English stroke. Yale used the English method. The defeat of the Yale crew increased the odds that Harvard was offering on the main race from 5 to 4 to 5 to 3. Many backers of the Crimson crew were even offering 2 to 1.

At 2.24 the Harvard and Yale crews easily, pulling away from the Yale crew. The Yale crew began to wabble, but Harvard increased her lead to six lengths and won handily.

In many ways and details the results of the day's events were unexpected. And from the elaborate test of the two diverse strokes, the presence in the Yale camp of practically the same corps of English coaches who have rounded out winning Oxford crews for their recent annual victories over Cambridge, and of Averill Harriman, son of the late Edward H. Harriman, as head coach, made the preparations for the regatta unique at Yale, and the launching upon the river for the regatta of English built and English rigged shells by Yale has created a novelty of absorbing interest.

That Harvard has risen, in the teeth of revolutionary tactics by Yale, to the methods and naval equipment that have for the past five years brought uniform success to her varsity eights has made the greatest and most direct comparison possible between the American and the English methods.

One day Mildred goes [illegible] with Elmer Shepard, a boy, and is surprised by the [illegible] of Gordon Kelly. For a moment he holds her in his arms, and [illegible] by Elmer. Gordon says he lives there.

[illegible] mountains and takes Mildred to ride. He asks her [illegible] and then [illegible] Gordon and Elmer [illegible] becomes ugly. Gordon and Elmer [illegible] about Gordon, and a stone thrown by the boy [illegible] from his hand. Later, while in a cage with Gordon, meets a mountaineer and makes him a proposition, as a result of which he rides up into the mountains and meets four rough-looking men and gives them money.

Mildred and Gordon become engaged. He takes her to see his home, which proves to be a splendid property on which his father spent over two millions. He tells her how he has lived there all his life and of his father's tragic death. Then he shows Mildred and Elmer the ball field and gymnasium in which he had been exercising for years. His income is over a million a year.

Mildred and Gordon have a happy month together, until one day he is stunned by a cyclone. When he comes to his senses, he finds himself surrounded by four rough mountaineers, who overpower him and carry him to a rude cabin in the woods.

Now Go On With the Story

Gordon had a pencil, but no paper. However, he discovered a small paper bag, which he slit down the sides with his knife, making of it a long, narrow sheet. Then, with the bottom of a tin plate for a desk, he very slowly wrote, in a large hand.

Posed by John Craig, of the Castle Square Theatre Company, Boston.

Copyrighted, 1913, International News Bureau.

GORDON rubbed the circulation back in his arms and then lay down. He had long since made up his mind to treat the situation good naturedly, feeling that more could be accomplished that way than being nasty about it. He resolved to trust to cheerfulness and diplomacy in his intercourse with these men. He had not yet been able to figure out what their object was in making him a captive. Perhaps they would demand a ransom for his release. He could not satisfy himself how they knew his name, either. The thought flashed across him that Galen Deery had something to do with the matter. Perhaps the Atlanta capitalists had learned of his companionship with Mildred. It was possible that Shephard has superintendent, had informed him. He recalled what Mildred had told him about her father's vast project and he tried to connect it with his present predicament.

While his thoughts were busy, the fire under the pots and pans was busy, too, and presently supper was announced. Three of his captors began eating at once, while the fourth stood guard over Gordon with a six-shooter in his hand. Evidently they had planned the whole thing out in advance, as they had not spoken to each other since entering the cabin.

After eating a hearty meal of bacon, corn cakes, stewed beans and crackers, Gordon stretched himself, smiled and announced that he felt better. He thought the other men probably felt in better humor, too, so he tried to start a little conversation.

"Do you men expect to keep me here, or will there be some more walking?" he asked, with a good natured smile.

The black-bearded man nodded. "Right you be I reckon," he replied, after some deliberation.

Allowed to Write

There was no answer to this remark. Three of the men had lighted pipes. The fourth, who seemed to be somewhat younger than the others, had been relieved of guard duty and was now eating his supper. When he had finished he drew a bag of tobacco and some tissue paper from a pocket and rolled a cigarette.

There was silence for a long time and then Gordon began again.

"I don't mind spending a little time with you men, as you appear to be willing to treat me fairly. I suppose you will tell me what this is all about when you get ready to do so. You won't find me troublesome. But I have a favor to ask of you. The people at my home and the people at Deery's house below will be very much worried about me. They may think I was killed in the cyclone. What I want you to do is to get word to them somehow that I am safe; or, if you will allow it, I will write a note that one of you can leave on the doorstep at night. Of course you can read the note before it is sent. What do you say?"

Three of the men looked at the man with the black beard as if expecting him to do all the necessary talking. He smoked in silence for several minutes. Then he spat and said:

"I reckon you all kin write."

CHAPTER XXXVII.

GORDON had a pencil, but no paper. However he discovered a small paper bag, which he slit down the sides with his knife, making of it a long, narrow sheet. Then, with the bottom of a tin plate for a desk, he very slowly wrote the following remarkable letter in a large hand.

Friend Mildred.

I write to tell you I am
Very well and for you and
Elmer and also your
Mother not to worry as
I am being well treated.
Lonely, of course, it is,
Especially as I cannot
See my friends; but
No matter; I will keep
On being cheerful and the Rest will come out right in
The end. I wish you would
Have someone to go
With you to my home (take Elmer) and please notify
Steve and all the others
That none of them
Must look for me
Yet. I will soon
Have, I expect, another
Opportunity to write
More. You may possibly
Expect it soon.
Love to all,
G. K.

When Mildred received these lines (which she did the following morning) she must have thought it a queer letter to get from the man she was so worried about. It was not a love letter, nor did it seem to say much of anything in any definite degree. Yet Gordon had deliberately written it that way, trusting to the girl's ingenuity to decipher the hidden meaning. As a matter of fact, the meaning was so little hidden that Gordon, as he wrote it, had doubts as to whether it would pass muster.

The Message Sent

Gordon folded the sheet of paper twice addressed it on the back to Miss Mildred Deery and handed it to the black-bearded man, who read it slowly; so slowly, in fact, that Gordon feared he discovered the simple cryptogram. But at last the mountaineer nodded and placed the letter in his pocket, whereat Gordon breathed with relief. Later in the evening the letter was given to the youngest of the four who, after receiving instructions from the bearded man, given in too low a tone for Gordon to distinguish the words, saddled a horse that was tethered nearby, mounted him and rode off in the darkness.

From the moment the rope that bound Gordon's arms had been removed, one of the four men had remained within ten feet of the captive, with a revolver in his hand. Every action of the mountaineers indicated that they meant business and Gordon had long since made up his mind that he would not attempt to escape that night. At intervals he endeavored to draw his captors into conversation, but without success. They were not sullen, or gloomy, or sulky; they simply refused to talk, so at last Gordon requested that he might be allowed to retire for the night.

At this the black-bearded man, with a sort of apology, drew from a corner of the cabin an iron ball and shackles of the kind that are used in Georgia penitentiaries and locked the chain around the prisoner's ankle. Then he placed the fetter in such a position at the foot of Gordon's bunk that he would not be inconvenienced very much by it and wished him good night. He retired soon after, as did one of the other men, leaving the third to stand guard. The latter placed a fresh candle close to the head of Gordon's bed and seated himself on the bench, six-shooter in hand.

Next morning Gordon had more of a chance to stretch himself. The fetter was removed from his leg, and after breakfast he was taken outdoors and allowed to do as he pleased within certain limits. The place the mountaineers had chosen to take him was situated in a kind of cup or hollow in the hills. It was effectually concealed, and there was no chance of their being discovered, unless someone should inadvertently stumble on their hiding place. Figuring on this possibility, Gordon told himself there was but one chance in a million of anyone finding the place by accident. Off in the mountain country, several miles from a road that was almost never used except between the mansion and Pew Station, he was as much a prisoner as though he were on some desert island.

His captors took absolutely no chance of his escaping. Wherever he went with[illegible] in the limits pointed out to him by the [illegible] black-bearded man he was followed, as [illegible] the ring-master, long whip in hand, fol[illegible] lows the performing horses in a circus, [illegible] by one of the four men holding a gun [illegible] ready for instant action. At intervals [illegible] Gordon would try to start a conversa[illegible] tion, but he did all the talking. Never were such silent men as the mountaineers proved to be. He could get absolutely no explanation as to why he was being held a prisoner.

Before the day was over Gordon made a long speech to them in which he covered all the points he could think of. He told them who he was. He said he had never injured anyone intentionally. He asked them if he were being held for a ransom, in which case he invited them to name their figure. To this proposition he received no reply, nor, in fact, could he get a word of any kind from them. Silence followed every question he asked. In spite of the exasperation of this sort of thing Gordon preserved his good nature throughout the day.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Special Notice to Readers of "THE TRIPLE TIE"

THE great serial "The Triple Tie," consists of forty-two chapters. On Sunday, June 29, Chapter 42 will be printed leaving Gordon Kelly in a very dramatic situation. Chapters 43 and 42 will be withheld for a few days in order to give the thousands of readers of the AMERICAN who have been reading "The Triple Tie" an opportunity to send in their conception of the conclusion of the story, summing up all issues of the mystery in competition for the prizes aggregating $500 offered by The AMERICAN.

Readers of "The Triple Tie" will have until noon of Thursday, June 3 in which to send in their answers. No contributions will be considered if they are delivered at the AMERICAN office later than July 3 at noon, or bear a postmark later than that time.

Please remember that this is not a guessing contest. Originality, literary value and analytical clearness will be largely considered in awarding the prizes. Three judges, in no way connected with the AMERICAN, will award the prizes.

The prizes for the best solutions are as follows:

First Prize	$200.00
Second Prize	100.00
Third Prize	50.00
Fourth Prize	25.00
Fifth Prize	15.00
Sixth Prize	10.00

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots; How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-Face, to try a remedy for freckles, with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any of the Rikerr-Jaynes drug stores, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine, as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Confessions of a Medium

A Sensational Expose of So-Called Spiritualists, Clairvoyants Palmists, Etc., Etc., by One of Them

No.1—The Moving Table Hoax

THE MINUTES PASSED BY, AND I COULD SEE THE TENSE, DRAWN FACES ABOUT ME. I COULD FEEL MY EYES GROW HEAVY AND MY BODY HALF PARALYZED FROM SITTING SO LONG, THE NUMBNESS EXTENDING TO MY VERY FINGER TIPS. I DREW A LONG BREATH, AS ONE IS APT TO DO AFTER A LONG STRAIN, AND THE TABLE MOVED.

I DREW ANOTHER BREATH, AND LO, THE TABLE MOVED AGAIN, RIGHT OFF ONE SIDE, AND DOWN AGAIN. IT WAS A MOST PECULIAR FEELING. SLOWLY AT FIRST THE TABLE SHUDDERED AND CRACKLED BENEATH MY HANDS AND LIFTED FROM THE FLOOR AND BACK AGAIN WITH A BANG.

THIS is the first of an intensely interesting series of articles by a man who is known to amateur spiritualists as "a wonderful medium." In the true sense of the word he never possessed any of the powers credited to him, but discovered that most of the so-called communications with the phantom world represented trickery. In these articles he explains fully just how professional mediums, clairvoyants, etc., snare thousands of dupes, his words containing a practical warning to those who part with hard-earned money in the belief that they are delving into the supernatural.—EDITOR.

By Chas. D. Isaacson.

MYSTERY! How it draws us and makes us shiver and shudder and creep. We are afraid of it and yet we cannot evade its magnetism.

This seeking after mystery is a human weakness. Every human weakness has its swarm of leaches and grafters who thrive upon it. Of all frauds, the spiritualistic fakir is the most despicable. Deceiving in the memory of dead men; forging messages in their names; eating bread earned of the wounded hearts of bereaved mourners. For it is the poor man and the poor woman who are the real dupes. It is the half-dollar wet with tears of the poor mourner that furnishes momentum to the profession.

A SEANCE

One day my stenographer came to me to tell me of a seance she had attended, and the wonder of it:

This girl was typical of these seekers after the mysterious. A meek, weak, frightened, credulous little thing, on the road to becoming the tool of her spirit medium. Her experience set me thinking, and when, some time later, several of my friends who were visiting me asked me in the course of the conversation to join them in a private experimental seance, I was glad of the opportunity.

At first, however, I pretended to be unwilling to mix in such "bosh." I did not wish to seem too anxious, for inwardly I was desirous of making several experiments of my own. I had been doing a little thinking, and I had come to some views all my own.

So, yielding to their persuasion, I joined them with much mock fear. We all sat about the table, our hands upon it palms downward. The lights had been lowered, and a spirit of solemnity had gradually enveloped us. One of my friends spoke:

"We are here to see if we can receive messages from the land beyond. There is one great unbeliever to our midst. He refuses to go to the duly constituted mediums, and we wish to show him that we can talk with you, spirits. Provided messages are given here, he will know that they are right, for would we fool ourselves?

THE SYSTEM

"The messages will be given through the table, because that is the authentic manner. The table will lift from one side, and tap back on the floor. Each tap will indicate a letter, according to its position in the alphabet. "A" will be indicated by one tap. "B" by two, and so on. For instance:

A—c—c
1—3—3
r—a—l—s—e—r
6—1—20—8—5—18

"This requires absolute concentration.

We are ready. Let us now await the spirits in silence and respect."

Then came a dead silence, save for the heavy breathing of the expectant group. I waited with the rest, except that I had an overwhelming feeling of utter foolishness at the absurdity of the situation. Nevertheless, if any demonstration were to be given, I would let it come gladly, for my mind was not closed.

The minutes passed by, and I could see the tense, drawn faces about me. I could feel my eyes grow heavy and my body half paralyzed from sitting so long, the numbness extending to my finger tips. I drew a long breath, as one is apt to do after a long strain—and the table—moved.

My heart stopped in the middle of a beat. We all gasped and looked at one another. "A spirit is present," murmured one in an awesome whisper. For the moment I was bewildered. Then there WAS something after all, and I had been the fool!

I drew another breath, and lo, the table moved again. Right off one side and down again. It was a most peculiar feeling. Slowly at first the table shuddered and crackled beneath my hands and lifted from the floor and back again with a bang.

But immediately I knew the explanation. It is a conceded fact that there is electricity in the body. Go for yourself into a darkened room and rub your feet briskly on the carpet. Then touch your finger to a metal and you will see a spark.

This electricity from all of the bodies contributed its share, but simpler and far more ridiculous: I HAD MOVED THE TABLE! As I drew my breath my arms had moved, and the table with them. All the people about the board had been waiting for the motion, and with the first impulse had unconsciously joined with me. The numbness in their hands and the tired feeling in their eyes made them unaware. This, together with that slight bit of electricity, had moved the table. Wonder of wonders!

HE EXPERIMENTS

I was not through, however. I determined to prove my little discovery further. As a result, the table was soon banging up and down, tapping out messages of the most wonderful nature. Playing on the knowledge I had of the various members of the group, I originated messages calculated to hit each of them in a vital point. I was determined to tell such things as no professional had ever been able to tell before, so true that the meeting would appear the most marvelous they had ever attended. And then to explain the manner in which the messages had been given. For instance, I had a father tell one of the men, his son, he must immediately mend his gambling proceedings; that the $30 he had lost the night before would have been better spent in paying some of his overdue bills.

George Washington told that in the next room, in the third drawer of the bureau, were several three letters that must be mailed that night. Were they there? They were, for I had put them there before. An unknown spirit told another that the next mail would bring an anonymous message. Did the letter come? It did, for I mailed it. An aspiring young author was told his manuscript would be returned. It was, but then I had shown only average intelligence in predicting a certainty. And so they went—every one correct, every one astounding them.

After the meeting I was surrounded. "Now do you believe?" they asked. "Doesn't that convince you beyond a doubt?" I had to admit it did.

(Mr. Isaacson's second article, dealing with the so-called "Prince Medium," will appear shortly on this page.)

Their Married Life

Helen Loses Her Engagement Ring, and Is Afraid to Tell Warren the Truth

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

A SICKENING leap and Helen's heart stood still! Noisily she stared at her bare finger. Her engagement ring! It was gone.

She clutched at the finger as though hoping her eyes had tricked her and that she would feel it there. But there was only the faint depression where the ring had been.

Dazed and tremulous, Helen fell about her dress, shook her skirts and looked blindly around.

She had been straightening the work basket, and as she wound up a spool of thread, her glance had fallen on the finger where always sparkled the engagement ring.

Snatching a newspaper, she feverishly emptied on it the contents of the work basket. Feverishly she looked among the spools and buttons. For one brief second she thought she saw the flash of the diamond—but it was only a rhinestone buckle.

"Maggie—Maggie—Oh, Maggie!" she called. "Come here a moment! Oh, I've lost my ring! Come help me look!"

"But, when d' you remember seein' it last?"

Helen stared at her blankly. When had she seen it last? She could not think. Did she have it that morning? Last night? She must have had it or she would have missed it before that.

For the next hour they both searched. Of one thing Helen was certain—that she had not left it on some washstand, for she never took it off to wash her hands. It had never been off her finger since Warren placed it there four years ago.

"Oh, the carpet sweeper, Maggie! Maybe you swept it up this morning. Empty it now! It'll only take a minute."

Folding up the trash in the paper Maggie hurried out to the kitchen. But Helen kept on looking—it must be somewhere in the house. She had not been out at all today. Yesterday afternoon she had made a dinner call on Mrs. Thurston, had stopped at a drug store and at the cleaner's, but she had not had her gloves off once.

The day before she had been shopping, but her mind refused to concede that she could have lost it so long ago. She felt certain that it had been on her finger at breakfast.

VERY SUPERSTITIOUS

In many ways Helen was very superstitious, and besides the heart-breaking loss of the ring, there was also the dread that it was a bad omen. Could it be a foreboding of some trouble between Warren and her? Oh, she must find it—she MUST find it!

She would not tell Warren—at least not tonight. Surely she would find it tomorrow. The mere thought of telling him made her sick with dread.

In spite of Helen's effort to appear as usual, Warren saw at once that something was wrong.

"What's the matter with you?" he demanded at dinner. "What makes you so glum?"

"Why, nothing dear. I'm a little tired, that's all."

To Helen the evening seemed endless. Warren read and she tried to sew, but not for one instant was the ring out of her mind. And she was in constant dread lest Warren should see her bare finger and speak of it.

That night she could not sleep. She tossed and turned and anguished over the ring. In the morning she had one of her sick headaches, which nervous worry and lack of sleep always brought on.

"You're not at a funeral, you know," was Warren's caustic comment, as he buttered his third piece of toast.

"Oh, I know," with a forced laugh. "It's this weather, I suppose. I'll be all right by evening."

As Helen poured his second cup of coffee, he suddenly noticed her hand. "What's the matter?" sharply. "Where's your ring?"

"Oh, the stone was a little loose—one of the prongs was worn, and I left it to have it reset."

Always some plausible untruth seemed to lean to Helen's lips at such times. She was never deliberately deceiving. The words seemed always to come of themselves.

MORE LIES

"Why didn't you give it to me? Where did you take it to? Some snide concern? They'll change that stone on you if you're not careful."

"Oh, no, dear. I took it to Blackford's. I didn't want to bother you with it."

With unspeakable relief Helen saw Warren off that morning. At least he had not doubted her story of the misfortune.

Maggie swept carefully every room and Helen went through every drawer and closet. Boxes, clothes hampers, shoe bags, every possible nook into which the ring might have slipped from her finger was searched.

She was to have gone shopping with Mrs. Stevens that afternoon, but she phoned her that she could not go. By noon she was almost sick, and yet she kept on looking. Over and over again she would search in the same places in a futile, helpless way.

"There ain't no use lookin' in there again, ma'am," said Maggie, as for the dozenth time Helen went through her top bureau drawer.

"I know, closing the drawer wearily; "yet I can't help but feel that it's somewhere about this bureau."

For one fleeting moment a doubt of Maggie flashed through her mind. She might have found it and not told her! But quickly she put this thought aside as unjust. For whatever Maggie's faults, she was scrupulously honest.

"You'd better lie down, ma'am," advised Maggie at length, "or you'll be sick. If it's here, we'll come across it. But you won't find it the way you're looking now," for Helen was feverishly going back again over the same ground.

A HARD FIGHT

By the time Warren came Helen was almost hysterical. She felt she could not keep it to herself any longer. If she only had told him the truth yesterday instead of saying she had left the ring at the jeweler's.

Now he would be furious at her deception! No—no, she COULD not confess that—and the loss of the ring, too! There was still the chance that she might find it tomorrow.

But the strain of the sleepless night and the fruitless day's search had been too great, and at dinner Helen broke down completely. Without any warning, she suddenly hid her face in her napkin and burst into tears.

Warren laid down his knife and fork and stared at her.

"Well, by guns! What's come over you?"

"My engagement ring," she sobbed. "I didn't take it to Blackford's! It's—it's LOST."

The silence of the next few moments was broken only by Helen's sobs. She dared not look up.

"So that's it," he finally rasped. "That's what's been the matter. And why, may I ask, did you lie to me about it?"

Helen cringed at the cold sarcasm in his voice.

"Oh, I—I thought I'd find it," she sobbed. "And I didn't want to worry you."

"Huh, still a sneer. "you lied because you're always trying to know how to tell the truth."

"Oh, but the ring, Warren, my engagement ring! Don't you see how MUCH it means? I didn't want to admit even to myself that it was lost. Oh, I feel that it's a bad omen. That it's—"

"Bad omen piffle! The bad omen of that ring was that I ever gave it to you. Our marriage comes mighty near being a blamed fiasco all right. Nine men out of ten are fools for marrying anyhow, and I was a double-dyed idiot."

"Oh, Warren—Warren, don't—don't say such things. You know you don't mean—"

"I mean all that and a whole lot more. Your lost ring may be a devilish good omen at that. There're a lot of things I'd count as better luck than having to spend the rest of my life with you."

Hurling down his napkin Warren stalked out, while Helen with her head on the table sobbed convulsively.

WARNS PERKINS HE WILL RECEIVE NO IMMUNITY

CHICAGO, June 20.—The government has warned George W. Perkins, former partner of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, in his testimony for the defence in the International Harvester Company anti-trust hearing that conditions under which he testified did not give him immunity from possible prosecution.

"You recognize that your testimony here is of your own volition and entitles you to no immunity?" the government lawyer asked Mr. Perkins.

"I recognize that the government has been very solicitous to get the fact," replied the witness warmly.

Mr. Perkins stated the International Harvester Company was formed because he did not believe the Mechanics concern was big enough. "So," he said, "it was then that the idea of getting all the harvester companies together came to me. I went among the different large companies and my plan for a consolidation in the matter of foreign selling was enthusiastically received."

Chamber Protects Location of Buoys

The Boston Chamber of Commerce will petition for the abolition of the red buoy on the Bird Island flats, and the moving of the black buoy, now off the New Haven piers, further down the harbor to mark the turning point into the dredged channel leading to the Commonwealth pier. It is said pilots complain that the buoys are useless and a hindrance to navigation.

LATEST FROM TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. Ross, Financial Editor.

Stock trading was dull in all markets this morning, the conditions of yesterday still prevailing. There was irregularity in this market. Among issues in which there was some business, New England Telephone was off a point and New Haven half a one. North Butte was down fractionally and Boston & Maine and United Fruit were each ½ higher. Boston Elevated was ahead.

First hour stock transactions in New York only totalled 78,200. The market weak at the beginning of the last half of the forenoon. Wentworth was down 3⅝, Canadian Pacific 1¼, Union Pacific 1, American Can common, Amalgamated and Lehigh Valley 1¼ each, Rock Island preferred and Illinois Central 1.

Stocks Opened Weaker in New York

Prices were lower when the New York market began, that having been also the case in London, where uncertainty as to Berlin conditions had an adverse influence. Sentiment in Paris was bearish, and throughout Europe, it is reported, there is doubt as to how affairs in the Balkans exactly stand. In fact, news from abroad was not reassuring and another factor in New York was hesitancy in regard to American conditions in this country. Sentiment regarding the new proposed currency law is rather dubious. Wall Street, it is assumed, does not like the measure.

The issues which led the downward movement were Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central and Norfolk & Western. The decline in the latter revived the report that the heirs of the late Edwin Hawley are selling blocks of stock. Hawley was a heavy holder. Among other declines were Utah Copper, ¾; Steel common, ⅝; Union Pacific, ⅝; Southern Pacific, ¾; Reading, ⅝; Northern Pacific, ½; New Haven, ½; B. & O., ½; Amalgamated, ⅝; American Can, ⅛; American Car & Foundry, ⅝, and Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railroad, which has been on the rise for over a week, advanced ⅛, to 119⅝.

The Curb was quiet.

The dealings in Americans in London were light and mainly professional.

Silent on Currency Plan.

Bankers are silent almost to a man as to the new currency bill, but those in New York are said to dislike the possibility of a large loss of deposits through the proposed changes in the national bank reserve scheme. A dispatch from Atlantic City, where the currency commission of the American Bankers' Association is in session, says one eminent banker, whose name is not given, remarked about the reserve feature:

"This is one of the most sweeping economic changes with which the country has had to deal."

Some bankers are of the opinion that small banks still will be compelled to keep large amounts in central reserve banks for business reasons and that, instead of affording a remedy for the tying up of funds, this evil will become more pronounced.

Will Pass a Currency Bill.

Although sentiment in Congress is rather doubtful as to how affairs stand, the belief is general that some sort of currency legislation at this session of Congress, Senator Owen, chairman of the Senate banking committee, believes that a measure to relieve urgent needs will be put through before adjournment. It may be perfected at the present session. When asked what he thought should be done to answer immediate requirements of the situation, he replied:

"First, making the present bank reserves mobile; second, providing elastic currency necessary for summer to expand according to commercial needs and to contract when the exigencies have passed.

"At present the bank reserves 15 per cent. for country banks, 25 per cent. for reserve cities, with the right to deposit half of such reserves with the central reserve cities, and 25 per cent. can be put in central reserve cities, are comparatively immobile, no. Surely, not capable of use in surmounting difficulties, the reason the bank needs such reserve must hold it in lawful money, and when the bank has loaned out its deposits to a certain extent it can no longer extend credits when the reserve limit is reached.

Establishment of Reserve Banks.

"By the new plan of establishing reserve banks a considerable number of these reserves will be put in the reserve bank, with the right to use such reserves in discounting five short-time commercial paper based on actual commercial transactions, and the reserve banks will be able to get United States treasury notes to the extent of discounting such commercial paper at a certain rate of interest fixed by the governing board—the so-called Federal Reserve Board.

"The Treasury notes would be secured by a first lien on the entire assets of the reserve bank, providing such notes issued, by 33⅓ per cent. gold reserve required to be kept in he banks of such banks' fund, or by commercial paper maturing within forty-five days, such commercial paper having one person or corporation good for no more than 10 per cent. indorsed by a member bank; and, fourth, by the double liability of the nominal bank. These notes would be called asset currency in any true sense.

Mechanism of Management.

"The Federal Reserve Board, representing the United States, will have general supervision, will fix the rate of interest for the reserve banks and the reserve banks will not be conducted for money making purposes, but as a servant of commerce, to stabilize commerce and to enable men entitled to credit to receive it upon a fair commercial basis, and in this way give greater freedom to the mercantile and productive classes in obtaining the means by which to carry on their legitimate business.

"The reserve banks will have a majority of the directors chosen by the banks and a third of the directors appointed by the United States—part of the latter being chairman of the board and the local agent of the United States."

London Copper Quotations.

There was a slump at the opening of the London copper market, spot and futures dropping 17s. 6d.

This was partly due to the action of big producers in reducing their asking price to 15 cents a pound. Small sales have been disposing of the metal for some time at a lower figure. There is no big buying in sight. How long consumers will be able to remain out of the market is uncertain. They are disinclined to stock up at the level set by the producers. They will hold out as long as possible and until all the metal in second hands has been disposed of. The construction of business in general is having much effect upon copper.

Copper exports for the week ending yesterday showed a comparative increase of 3,204 tons.

Financial News in Brief.

New York, Ontario & Western directors have resumed disbursements upon stock by declaring a 2 per cent. dividend, the first in nearly two years. The New Haven road will be the chief beneficiary.

It is reported at Detroit that a $10,880,000 cash dividend has been declared by the Ford Motor Car Company, sole owner of 51 per cent of the stock. Mr. Ford would get $5,880,000, while James Couzens would receive $1,150,000, the Dodge Brothers $1,000,000, the Gray estate $1,050,000 and John W. Anderson and H. H. Rackham $500,000 each.

For April the total operating revenue of railroads is figured at $237,762,429 a gain of $22,893,968 over the returns of the same 1912 month.

In April last the Illinois Central earned $552,000 more than in the same month last year.

The New York associated banks, with $390,000 to the banks on Thursday, making a cash net loss of $51,000 since Friday.

Thinks New Yorkers Weak and Undefined

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—In the name of the children of the West, nine young women from the coast, all school teachers, called upon Mayor Blankenburg and pleaded that the Liberty Bell be sent to the Exposition in San Francisco in 1915. After the Mayor had told them he would do what he could, Miss Marvel Rainey of New Powe, Idaho, said:

"I was disappointed in the men I saw in New York. None of them seemed like desirable husbands. They were all hollow eyed and pale. They looked as though they were either worked to death or had not been fed."

B. C. FORBES' VIEWS ON NEW CURRENCY BILL

By B. C. FORBES.

Business Editor of the American.

The administration's currency bill as printed in yesterday's AMERICAN seeks to accomplish several very desirable and also several very questionable purposes. It will no doubt be altered in important respects before it becomes law—which, by the way, is not likely to be this session, notwithstanding the hopes entertained by President Wilson and a few of his colleagues.

Here are the chief merits of the measure as they appear on a first reading of it:

1—It would remove control of the country's banking machinery from the money power, and place it where, in the final analysis, it belongs, in the hands of the United States government.

2—It would vitalize and mobilize commercial paper, rendering available as a basis of credit hundreds of millions of dollars of valuable tokens of live, genuine, convertible wealth.

3—It would bring banking facilities within reach of our farmers at reasonable rates and our farmers now produce some ten billions of new wealth every year.

4—It would enable the strong banks to invade foreign countries, a reform that becomes more and more imperative as American manufacturers capture world markets and prepare to solve a proper share of commerce which the Panama Canal will foster.

Some Points Criticized.

Objection may be raised and amendment sought on these points:

1—The Federal Reserve Board is highly political in its makeup.

2—This board arrogates to itself extraordinary power—power greater than possessed by those responsible for the conduct of the Bank of England, the Bank of France or the Imperial Bank of Germany.

3—The Federal Board proposes to be active, even in normal times, in "pruning" the country's banking business—in the length of paper, proposing to fix bank interest rates in every district of the Union.

4—The Federal board of directors are not left as great discretion as may be considered desirable to enable them to meet fluctuating local needs and conditions.

5—Provisions governing the issuance of notes are obscure; the Federal Board's latitude in completely discarding reserve precautions is abnormal, and the whole method of providing and safeguarding new and rolling existing currency may have to be amended.

6—The amount of distribution and handling of the reserve—actual considerations—may be found faulty.

Central Authority Needed.

Some central authority is necessary, but the less the Federal body interfered with the normal banking business the better. Its powers should be exercised in times of need, but the district boards of directors ought to be capable, and, indeed, best fitted to manage local affairs during normal conditions. Full confidence should be reposed in these district boards for presumably the men selected will know better than the Washington authorities what local needs demand.

These hasty observations are made with timidity. It is well, however, to promote immediate and full discussion of a subject. Only thus can the soundest conclusions be reached before any plan is enrolled on the statutes.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

The Chicago Automobile Club will make a three days' visit to Boston and New England during the month of July. Chairman Frank X. Mudd of the Runs and Tours Committee of the Chicago Automobile Club, has worked out the details of a long distance tour from Chicago east with Boston as the turning point.

The party will leave Chicago on July 17 and make night stops in South Bend, Ypsilanti, Buffalo, Auburn, Albany and Worcester, arriving in Boston in time for lunch on July 23.

Three days will be spent here visiting the many historic points around the city and on the morning of July 22 the start for home will be made, the route being through Providence to New London and back to New York, where a two days' stop will be made. From New York the party will drive to Atlantic City, where one day will be spent, thence to Hagerstown, and Pittsburgh, reaching Chicago on the evening of August 3.

J. E. Cunningham of the J. W. Maguire Company returned yesterday from a visit to the Pierce-Arrow plant, where he had attended a three-days' meeting devoted exclusively to the consideration of commercial vehicle matters.

Mr. Cunningham said that the reports made by the representatives of the sales department all over the country indicate a general adoption of motor vehicles for commercial purposes, not in any particular section of the country but in every section. Nineteen hundred and thirteen, he says, is a big truck year, but the coming season will be even greater.

When E. J. Kulas, general manager of sales of the Peerless Company, returned to Cleveland the other day he carried with him a gold watch fob as a memento of the very pleasant Peerless finally during all the beasts on Tuesday last.

This watch fob was of a particularly attractive design, being a demountable wheel and tire with the replica of the Peerless radiator in the centre. The wording on the face of the fob was "Peerless Boston Boosters," and on the reverse the subscription was befitting the occasion. Mr. Kulas naturally was delighted with this souvenir of the outing.

C. N. Colstad, who for the past year or more has been special factory representative for the Lozier Motor Company on the wholesale work in New England, has resigned from that company to accept a position with the newly organized Chandler Motor Car Company of New England, and will devote himself to the sale of Chandler cars in this territory.

Electrified Pool Kills Two Horses

Driver Severely Shocked by Powerful Current in Mattapan Puddle.

Two horses were instantly killed and their driver severely shocked at 11 o'clock this morning when a pool of electrified water in the middle of Oakland street, Mattapan, today.

The explosion for the presence of hundreds of volts of electricity in the big street puddle was given by the police as follows: The Elevated trolley wires became crossed. The electricity was sent into the poles on either side of the street. From the poles the current entered the ground. When the horses walked into the pool their bodies completed the circuit.

'Joe' Vokes' Annual Outing Tomorrow

Sail to Bass Point, Dinner, Dancing, and Music, the Program.

"Joe" Vokes' annual outing will be run tomorrow. The big steamer will go to Bass Point, and everything that goes with an evening at the shore is planned. There will be the sail down by moonlight, a shore dinner, music and dancing, singing, fishing and bathing.

The excursion will leave Otis Wharf at 8 o'clock sharp, and sail to Bass Point, arriving there at 9:30, in time for one of the famous fish dinners at either the Relay House, Hotel Brenton or the Bass Point House.

After dinner a dancing party will be held at the Relay House dancing pavilion and will last until 10:45, the time set for the boat to start on the moonlight sail, from Bass Point to the Boston Light and back to Boston in time to catch street cars and trains for home.

Lawrence J. Sheehan, managing director of the Bass Point steamship line, has given assurance that nothing will be left undone to make the sail a unique one.

Proverb Guide Books Can Also Be Obtained at Your Local Newsdealer's

Is it worth your while to win $1000 IN GOLD COIN for solving Seventy-five Proverb Pictures?

It does not make any difference whether you are a city or an out-of-town reader of the paper—all you have to do is to prove your ability by solving the puzzle pictures day by day.

The only proverbs will be those which appear in the official guide prepared by the AMERICAN, which contains, therefore, a painstaking selection which it would be extremely difficult to duplicate.

Solely for the convenience and aid of those contestants who wish to arrive at their solutions with the least expenditure of time and trouble, these guides are offered at the modest sum of twenty-five cents each, or five cents more if sent by mail.

We announce this good news about the guide, knowing that thousands of contestants will gladly avail themselves of the chance to secure so great a help at such a moderate cost. It is a book worth intrinsically the quarter you pay for it, and you would be glad to have it even if you never thought of using it in the contest.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

The Pretense of the Apostate Democrats That They Voted for Trolley Merger as Favor to Western Members of Legislature Deceives Nobody

There seems to be an organized understanding among the Democratic members of the Legislature who betrayed their party and the interests of the State by voting to give the New Haven Railroad the trolley lines in more than half of Massachusetts, that they should pretend that their vote was given, not in OBEDIENCE TO THE RAILROAD INTERESTS, but as a FAVOR to the western members of the Legislature who were supposed to be almost crazy to leap into wide open jaws of this railroad monopoly.

But this pretense will not work. It will deceive nobody.

Last year, before the Democratic convention had declared against the trolley merger, the Boston Democrats in the Legislature who voted for it pretended that they were moved by the "prayer from the hill towns."

But when the Democratic convention spoke against this surrender to the railroad monopoly, these Eastern Democrats realized that the cry was too far from the hill towns to Boston to serve them as an excuse again. So the excuse this time is that they log-rolled with the Western members.

These Democratic apostates have grace enough not to pretend that their vote was justifiable as part of a log-rolling bargain. But they would rather be charged with log-rolling THAN WITH SOMETHING MORE SERIOUS.

These Democrats realize that the public understands, also, by what means a railroad gets what it wants from a Legislature. The methods of a railroad lobby are now no longer mysterious to the people.

When the people of Massachusetts can be made to believe that a Democrat from the eastern part of the State voted, at the request of some Republican in the West, to violate his party platform, to shame his party and jeopardize its success, to override the veto of his Democratic Governor, whose veto last year the party had indorsed, to ignore the warnings of nearly all the important Boston newspapers, of the Chamber of Commerce, of the Tax Commissioner, of the Railroad Commission, of the Public Franchise League and of the overwhelming weight of public opinion against giving the New Haven Railroad more property to ruin and more power to misuse—when the people of Massachusetts can be made to believe that a Democrat in the Legislature was willing to defy all these influences for the sake of a few legislators in the West, then men have lost their reason.

These apostate Democrats ought to invent another and better excuse. There is but one way by which so outrageous a vote can be obtained. It is the way of the railroad lobby. Every intelligent citizen knows it.

"It Is Better to Have Dead Grass Than Dead Children"

So a woman has been fined in Boston for taking her children upon the green grass of the Common. The Judge found that a city ordinance forbade a mother to sit with her children on the grass of Boston Common. A mother was publicly dragged to jail in the presence of onlookers and of her own children for the serious crime of enjoying the best feature of the Common—its green grass.

If there is such an ordinance, it cannot be repealed too quickly. Young Vincent Astor remarked concerning a similar situation in New York that it was better to have dead grass than dead children. He is right.

We have the Public Garden to please the eye. Boston Common ought to be a place for real, solid comfort and relaxation. Boston Common is not meant for aesthetic people. It ought to be for just such people as Mrs. Fraser and her two children.

Let the citizens of Boston read her statement and consider it:

What has a poor mother to do in Boston these warm days? Here I am fined one dollar for sitting on the grass of Boston Common. My children enjoy going there. I do not know where I can take my children in the afternoon, as I am not able to take them far, for this costs fares.

My children just love the Common. I must keep them in. You can't take children to the Common without having them run at times on the grass. I watch them carefully all the time, but when I am not looking they are on the grass before I know it.

They should have a place set apart just for mothers and their children on the Common, where mothers would be free from the cruel actions of the police.

Can anyone read this statement from this mother and not wish the grass of the Common to be opened to such women and their children?

We trust that Judge Burke has never placed on file a charge more serious than this.

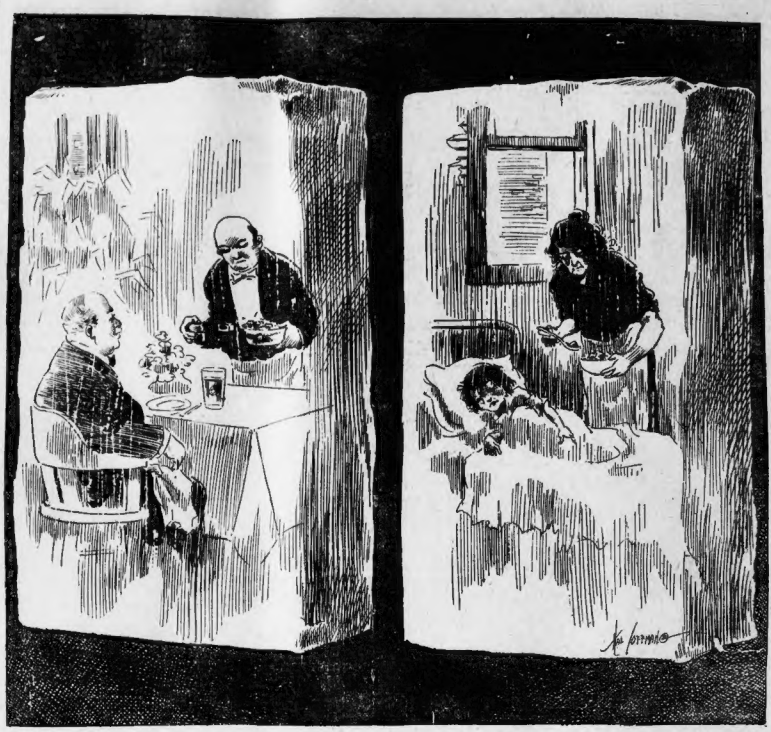
China's Rapid Striving Upward

Ten years ago, when express trains were flying across two continents, when ocean greyhounds were bridging two oceans, when liberty was swinging her enlightening torch over most of the nations of the world, China still dwelt placidly and contentedly in semi-barbarism, going to war with banners and painted dragons, eating birds' nests with chopsticks and supplying victims by millions to the thriving British opium industry. Within a decade China has abolished the opium habit, sent to America for locomotives and mining machinery, imported Cornell graduates to teach her husbandmen intensive farming, and overthrown a monarchy whose rule had been unquestioned for thousands of years. Incidentally she has built battleships and trained a first-class fighting army. And the other day an American aviator set out for Pekin to teach the youth of that suddenly awakened country how to fly. In some countries progress is a plant of slow growth, but not in China.

The Pictures in the Ice



The man—to whom the cost of ice doesn't matter—sees in it merely an added fillip to a long drink. The woman—to whom the cost of ice is a heart-breaking matter—sees in it relief, perhaps life itself, for her child, sweltering in the tenement room.

And now as hot weather comes to bring death and sickness to the mothers and children of the tenements, the Ice Trust is preparing to reap its annual harvest of the pennies of the poor. The piece of ice that poor folks buy will be smaller than ever this year UNLESS the Attorney-General of Massachusetts, backed by this newspaper, can stop it. If you know any facts showing how the Ice Trust has forced up the price of ice, send them to the AMERICAN.

The Boston and State-wide Ice Trust WILL be broken up. Ice dealers will be forced to sell ice at a fair profit wherever and whenever they please in honest competition. The days of the "Soak 'Em Club" are numbered, Mr. Ice Trust and Gentlemen.

At the Gate

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Poem Copyrighted, 1913, American-Journal-Examiner.

THEY stood before the Angel at the gate:
The Angel asked: "Why should you enter in?"
One said: "On earth my place was high and great";
And one: "I warned my fellowmen from sin";
Another: "I was teacher of the faith;
I scorned my life and lived in love with death."
And one stood silent. "Speak!" the Angel said:
What earthly deed has sent you here today?"
"Alas! I did but follow where they led,"
He answered sadly: "I had lost my way—
So new the country and so strange my flight;
I only sought for guidance and for light."
"You have no passport?" "None," the answer came.
"I loved the earth, tho' lowly was my lot.
I strove to keep my record free from blame,
And make a heaven above my humble spot.
A narrow life; I see it now, too late;
So, Angel, drive me from the heavenly gate."
The Angel swung the portal wide and free,
And took the sorrowing stranger by the hand.
"Nay, you alone," he said, "shall come with me.
Of all this waiting and insistent band.
Of what God gave, you built your paradise;
Behold your mansion waiting in the skies."

Few Wives Give Home Proper Attention

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

IN one of the greater cities of America lives a woman who has passed the half century mark and retained the name of "a good woman." She has broken no commandment; she has never been "talked about"; she has been amiable; she has been charitable toward the poor. Yet the sins of omission of this good woman have been formidable.

In early youth she married an ambitious and studious young man.

He was bent upon making a name for himself among the professional men of his native State.

He studied hard; he worked harder; and he succeeded in placing his name beside those of older men of his chosen profession.

He established a home; and he prospered in a financial way.

But, being a busy professional man, he had no time or strength to give outside of his own domain.

The home, he left to the care of his wife.

The wife left it to the care of servants.

She never knew what food was coming on her table; she knew nothing of what came into her home, or went out of it, oftentimes supplying the tables of her employes.

She took no care of the home provided by her husband's money; she took no interest in his work other than feeling an abstract pride that he was a successful man.

She lived a life utterly devoid of any sense of obligation.

She read the newspapers, but never a book of any literary value. She did not study or think; she just drifted through life.

She wore such garments as her dressmaker told her to wear; and sent the bills to her husband to pay. She was not extravagant in dress, but her clothes carried no distinction, and as they were not well selected, or well cared for, they soon seemed shabby.

The husband prospered so well during his middle life that he did not worry over the financial situation, believing that he would be able to weather all gales which might blow over life's sea.

He wished his wife were different; but being a kind-hearted American husband, he did not rise up in righteous indignation and insist upon her doing her part.

An only child married and went to distant lands to dwell.

The father fell ill, and, after a long sickness, found himself unable to work as hard as of old.

Then the neglect of the home began to show.

There was nothing from cellar to attic which was in order.

It required large outlays of money to restore the ravages of neglect and time.

And before the man and wife reached the age of sixty they found themselves in troubled financial seas.

Both looked prematurely old; the man from overwork and worry, and the woman from an idle, inactive life.

There was no bright prospect for them of a restful and peaceful and comfortable old age.

The man had never spent any money in riotous living. He had never been a club man, or given to extravagant habits.

He had simply erred by being too patient as a husband, and by not overseeing the home, and insisting upon the co-operation of his wife in making their future safe, by sane and sensible methods of housekeeping.

This is not a solitary case.

There are many women in America who are satisfied with themselves, believing they are good wives and admirable women, who are doing just what this woman did—sinning through the sins of omission, and failing to use the greatest of all opportunities which God can give a woman, that of making her home a successful experiment in an imitation of Eden.

Order was heaven's first law; every home must be built on the foundation of order; system must be the first law in its management; love and enthusiasm must furnish the fuel with which to keep its altars ablaze with happiness and prosperity and comfort, and freedom from debt.

There is no greater work on earth for a woman to do. But how many such home makers and home keepers do you know among your acquaintances?

The battle of Gettysburg was fought fifty years ago. The anniversary will be celebrated this Summer.

The AMERICAN has secured a limited edition of a "Gettysburg Memorial" volume. It contains photographs of every event of importance during the Three Days' Battle of Gettysburg, and every important position of the Union and rebel troops. There are photographs of many of the details of the battle. All printed on glazed paper, from exceptionally fine halftones.

The Sunday AMERICAN will contain a coupon. For this coupon and five cents you can secure the Memorial.
